10 INJURED WHEN PENNSY TRAIN IS DERAILED

TODAY

Convicted? Of What?

Col. Mitchell for Senator.

If New York Had a Boom.

A court-martial finds Col. Mitchell guilty. Guilty of what? TELLING THE TRUTH, OF COURSE, about a lot of official incompetents, and rendering an important service to his country.

The "conviction" of Col. Mitchell convicts the war department, in the public estimation, not Mitchell.

In this whole performance the public can find one comfort. The political career of Mr. Weeks, formerly secretary of war, is as completely ended as that of a mackerel carefully salted and pressed down at the bottom of the barrel.

Col. Mitchell's career is just beginning. The people will not forget a man of courage, who has refused to join the lickspittle brigade of officers that say whatever they are expected to say, covering the stupidity of superiors that they may be rewarded with promotion.

Mitchell ought now to run for senator on the Democratic ticket in Wisconsin. He would teach a useful lesson to some blind Republicans.

Wisconsin appreciates men of courage and has not forgotten that Col. Mitchell's grandfather, in the early days, was one of the best builders of the great state of Wisconsin.

The main thing is that the people have learned the truth from Mitchell. What he has said about the miserable incompetency of our aircraft has been confirmed by men that understand flying.

The rest of the Mitchell story will be told inside of congress and outside by Mitchell himself.

WELCOME SANTA BUT BEWARE OF FIRE DEMON, IS BRYAN'S PLEA

Fire Chief Urges Fireless and Merry Christmas.

LISTS "DON'TS"

Keep Yuletide, But Keep it Safe, is Admonition.

A plea for a fireless as well as a merry Christmas was made by Fire Chief Thomas Bryan today in his annual warning concerning the many fire hazards which prevail during the Yuletide season.

"There is one visitor who appears during the Yuletide that everyone welcomes," said the fire department head, "and that person is none other than Santa Claus. But don't let the fire demon come in with him. By all means, keep Christmas but keep it safe."

"One of the things a fire chief has to do most often and one of the things he likes to do the least," continued Chief Bryan, "is to keep issuing warnings. No one likes to play the part of a 'kill-joy' no matter how good the reasons—certainly I don't. And so I hope that everybody who reads the few words of caution I've written down about Christmas celebrations will take them in the right spirit and understand that there must be some real cause for alarm or I wouldn't talk like this at such a season.

Don't Use Candles.

"The truth is that Christmas is sometimes turned from a time of good cheer to one of deep sorrow, very suddenly, and all because of fire. Everybody who reads the newspapers remembers the accounts of death and injury and property destruction reported last year on Christmas day and the days immediately following. Almost always such fires are due to somebody's carelessness and, according to figures I have from the National Board of Fire Underwriters, about one in every ten Christmas fires result in loss of life. Certainly nobody wants anything like that to happen in East Liverpool when it can so easily be prevented."

Here are Chief Bryan's "don'ts" and suggestions:

"If you must have a candle in the window on Christmas eve, make it an electric one—that is safe.

"If a Christmas tree is used, make sure that it is securely set up so that it will not topple over, and keep it away from heating and lighting fixtures.

"Use metal tinsel, flake asbestos

Trotsky Elected To Presidium by Communist Party

MOSCOW, Dec. 19.—Leon Trotsky was today elected a member of the presidium of the Communist party.

Trotsky's election apparently means that he is being restored to his former place in the high places in the Communist party.

Zinovieff and his followers, who were largely responsible for the decline of Trotsky's powers, now find themselves in declining favor with the Communist party.

CRAFT WRECKED AS IT BRUSHES TREES ON FARM AT ZANESVILLE

One Birdman Sustains Broken Back and Internal Injuries.

PAL UNCONSCIOUS

"Engine Stopped," One Aviator Tells His Rescuers.

ZANESVILLE, O., Dec. 19.—A government airplane manned by Lieut. James Hewings, of Boston, Mass., and Lieut. Lawrence Stipe, of Saginaw, Mich., crashed into a small woods on the Alex Smith farm, just across the road from Headly inn, five miles west of the city, on the national road, at 11:40 today and both men were badly injured. One of them, Lieut. Stipe, will die.

Enroute to Aberdeen, Md.

The two birdmen were brought to a local hospital and a hasty examination revealed that Stipe had sustained a broken back and other internal injuries, while Hewings sustained a broken leg and other injuries, not considered necessarily fatal. Both men are unconscious.

The plane was enroute from Phillips Field, Aberdeen, Md., to McCook Field at Dayton. When rescuers reached the plane one of the men, just before lapsing into unconsciousness, said, "the engine stopped." Sailing down toward the earth it crashed into a tree top in the Smith woods and was completely wrecked.

INDUSTRIALLY, UNITED STATES ENTERS 1926 WITH MOST PROMISING CONDITION IN DECADE, SAYS MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION CHIEFTAIN

By JOHN E. EDGERTON,
President National Association of Manufacturers.

NEW. YORK, Dec. 19.—Industrially, the United States enters the year 1926 in what I regard as its most promising condition in a decade. But with this optimistic thought I believe the entire business and social nation should exercise the utmost caution and be ever alive to its justification to keep the country in the lead of the world. Prosperity has its perils far greater than adversity and a nation is in its most critical stage when it enjoys its greatest opulence.

We have toiled hard to build a great country—we will have to toil harder to keep it a great country. Only by synchronized industry can we continue our industrial nation as it is functioning today giving the greatest happiness to man and management and maintaining the highest employment standards in the world.

Looking at Europe, we see a strong tendency toward world recovery. Eleven foreign debt settlements have been drawn up, a number of inter-allied debt funding arrangements have been made, a dozen nations have returned to the gold standard, as many smaller nations have reorganized their currency systems, and the Locarno agreement promises numerous aids to world stabilization. Many European countries are applying our machine production methods, developing long idle resources, borrowing enormous capital to reach out into the competitive domestic and foreign markets, becoming more Democratic and widening the fields of opportunity for their masses rather than their classes.

Healthy Condition.

All of these things may be translated easily into a challenge to this nation—into warning that Europe, back again at work, will be a stronger competitor than she ever has been before. That calls for greater application, greater energy, greater organization of our industry than ever.

In our own country there is not a cloud on the industrial horizon that betokens anything more than a seasonal shower. The stability, solidity and sane contentment of our industry nad our public are shown in the existing anthracite coal strike which, while in effect four mounths, has caused only the slightest ripple of apprehension—and this strike affects the public far more than it does industry.

A survey of the whole country made by our association two months ago revealed a healthy condition with excellent forecast for the winter and early part of the year. Production and sales quantities had increased over the previous year. Values and wages had increased. Production and consumption were nearer to a level with more even buying. Unemployment and labor dissensions had been reduced also to zero. The same situation exists today, or, if there has been a change it has been for the better. Our whole country is in a most enviable position. It is our duty to keep it so.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Return to normal conditions in the country's building program is indicated in an exhaustive survey of building conditions in 70 cities and districts of the country made public today by G. L. Miller and Company. The survey was made with the co-operation of the Associated General Contractors and the National Council of Building Trade Employers.

The situation at the end of this year was thus summarized:

Fifty-two cities and five districts reported the outlook for another big building year.

Eight cities predicted new high building record during the next twelve months.

Thirteen cities and two districts reported definitely the possibility of slump construction.

Thirty-one cities are temporarily caught up with apartment house and home building requirements.

Twenty-two cities reported important industrial and commercial building programs.

Three cities have shortage in housing facilities.

Ten reported deficit in public and industrial buildings.

Few of the larger cities expect any material decline in building activities, according to the Miller survey. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Detroit and other large cities expect another big construction year, equalling if not exceeding the 1925 volume. Cincinnati, Kansas City and Minneapolis were the largest of the small number of cities expecting a slump, few of which anticipated any serious depression.

Practically all of the larger cities such as Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Boston, St. Louis, have caught up, temporarily at least, on apartment house and home accommodations. Only three cities, Tampa and Miami, Fla., and Salt Lake City, Utah, reported any material housing shortage.

More than a score of cities reported that they were undertaking huge normal building programs in an effort to keep pace with their rapid growth.

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street. Have them bring their Bibles. The questions for this week are:

Answer: Compare Scripture with Scripture and let plain statements explain symbolical language. Isa. 28:10.

150. What other Scriptures refer to the second advent and tell what is to happen at the time?
Answer: Daniel 12:1; Matthew 24: 21,22; Zephaniah 3:8,9.

151 How did the Apostle Paul express the matter?
Answer: See Hebrews 12:26, 27:29.

153. Why is it stated that God will "Shake" 'or "Remove" not the earth only but heaven also?
Answer: Because religious or spiritual institutions not in harmony with His Word are to be "Removed."

154 What "kingdom" is it that "cannot be moved"?
Answer: God's kingdom. See Daniel 2:44.

155 Were people in general to know, in advance, of the "coming of the Son of Man" and the destruction of the world the arrangement of things?

METHUSELAH'S WIFE

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO MARRIED FOR MONEY

By Edgar Pue Norris

TWENTY-EIGHT.

Harry Yancey went with Noble to the station. They were going to make the trip together, it appeared. Laurel supposed Noble needed Harry as a legal adviser.

"I'll keep an eye on him for you." Harry laughed, as the two prepared to leave Harwood house. "He's a gay, old bird."

Laurel affected a smile. She wished that Harry Yancey had gone to the station directly and allowed her to be alone with Noble. She disliked to parade her affections. The feeling in the parting kiss she gave Noble was suppressed.

"You must write me every day—or several times a day," she murmured.

"I will," he promised, appearing anxious to go. Laurel stood at the door and watched the car disappear down the driveway. There had been something ominous in Harry Yancey's laughing remark. Could she trust Noble? A cutting nocturnal breeze struck her and sent her back into the house, shivering.

"Is madam going out?" Louis asked respectfully.

"No." She walked into her library, feeling bereft. The oak-paneled walls of the room, reflecting moodily the glow of the fireplace, depressed her. She flooded the place with lights and sat down before the blaze, seeking warmth and consolation. There, a quarter of an hour late, Marion found her.

"Has Daddy gone?"

"Yes. . . . . You knew, Marion, that he was going away this evening."

Her step-dauther was not affected by the rebuke. "I thought he'd go on a later train. . . . I just got back from the country club. . . . I'll send him a telegram with my love. He's going to New York, isn't he?"

"No, Chicago and Detroit." She was annoyed by Marion's questions, because she resented her step-daughter's neglect of Noble. Laurel was sure that her husband was hurt by his daughter's new indifference to him.

Marion sat down and gazed into the fire. It was evident here was something on her mind. Soon she turned to her step-mother and spoke: "Say, I'm going to give a party here. Tomorrow night. We can dance and have buffet supper. You can be the chaperon."

Laurel's eyes flashed. "Did you speak to your father about it?"

"Oh, he won't mind. . . . There'll be just ten or twelve."

The other woman turned away to conceal the resentment in her flushed face, Marion might at least have asked her approval. . . .

"I may not be here," she lied. "I had planned to go out."

"Oh, all right."

Marion's careless response made Laurel's cheeks burn all the more. With effort she kept her voice calm. "Perhaps you can get your aunt to chaperon the party."

"Aw, say! She's too stiff-necked."

"There should be some one." She still wondered at the roughness of her step-daughter. All of the money Noble has spent upon his daughter's education seemed to have been wasted.

"Well, you'll be coming back later in the evening, won't you?"

"Yes. . . . yes." She was thinking that now she would have to go out whether she wanted to or not. "I suppose you have told Louis to prepare for the guests," she went on.

Marion responded with a nod. "I'm going to bed. If anybody calls me, I'm out and under." She arose.

Something impelled Laurel to smile up at her. "You aren't looking very well. You need a rest. Hadn't you better loaf for several days and recuperate? You can postpone the party."

"Oh, I'm all right. I can't put off the party now—I've already asked everybody."

Laurel frowned again. It occurred to her that Marion deliberately planned to take advantage of her father's absence from the city.

"Night." Marion strode out of the room, a young animal more like a male than a female. To Laurel, the ultra-feminine, Marion was a sexless creature, coarse, dismaying. She thought of herself as belonging to another generation. The 11 months difference in their ages seemed more like 11 years.

Laurel tried to interest herself in a book, but the dilemma suddenly thrust upon her weighed upon her mind. If anything untoward happened at the party, Noble would blame her; and he probably would blame her anyway for "permitting" it. And any effort she made to keep her step-daughter within bounds would only widen the breach between them. . . . She felt very lonely.

NEW ENGLAND "SPUD" PRICES CAUSE BOYCOTT

Housewives Refuse to Buy or Serve Potatoes.

90 CENTS A PECK

Farmers Happy as They Receive $6 a Barrel.

BOSTON — New England housewives are up in arms. Potatoes are retailing from 75 to 90 cents a peck.

"Spuds will sell for $10 a bag—the price during the World war," predicts a leading Boston dealer.

Short crop, gamblers and speculators—all are blamed for the price boost.

Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Massachusetts Necessaries of Life Commission, has launched an investigation.

And meanwhile, the housewives have boycotted the "spud," refusing to serve it on their tables so great is their anger.

Railroad Yards Clogged.

In face of the advance in price of potatoes, the railroad yards are clogged with potato-laden cars. The railroad potato houses are filled to the roof with the lowly vegetable. The Boston and Maine railroad declared an embargo on potatoes. A rush to reach the market is the answer.

Down in the Aroostook, Maine, potato belt, where is raised ten per cent of the entire crop of the United States, the farmers are indignant. "We are not to blame for high prices," says the farmers. The wholesaler and retailer, assert the farmers, must explain why potatoes that cost on an average of 55 cents a peck delivered in Boston sell at the excessive price of 90 cents per peck.

Aroostook has been through two lean years. Many of her farms are mortgaged to the roof. Many of her fertilizer bills remain unpaid. Outside banks have loaned her farmers money to carry on. A small crop was planted this year. It was a necessity. The Aroostook farmer was unable to stand a heavy load. Then came the early snow. Some potatoes could not be harvested.

Boon To Farmers.

All this was a God-send to the potato farmer. Last year he got $1 a barrel for his "spuds." Today he is receiving $6 a barrel.

In 1919, a short crop year, Aroostook farmers got $10 a barrel for their potatoes. And it looks as if the $10 mark was going to be touched this year. All of which is great news for the farmer, the banker who loaned the farmer money, the country storeman who has carried the farmer's accounts, the fertilizer companies, etc.

But the New England housewife. Already the boycott has halted the price advance.

Where will the circle end, asks the economist. And the answer will not be known until next spring.

Walnuts shipped from Rumania to this country in six months of 1925 were valued at $42,000 more than all those sent in 1925.

Rice Methods Studied.

Good Luck Day In Seal Campaign

Today is Good Luck Day in East Liverpool's Christmas health seal campaign.

Club women and high school girls, seeking to attain the $2,200 goal in the 1925 fight against tuberculosis, are mingling among pedestrians, appealing to them to purchase one seal and pay any amount they desire. In other words, as Mrs. Louis Steinfeld, chairman of the health committee of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, points out, today's sale is a "thank offering" in the warfare against the white plague.

"Think you are lucky to be the purchaser instead of the patient," is the slogan in the one-day canvass which is expected to close the campaign which has as its main object, in addition to providing means of sanatorium treatment for tuberculosis sufferers, the employment of a public health nurse in East Liverpool.

With approximately $274 needed to raise the $2,200 quota fixed for the city—a per capita of 10 cents—Good Luck Day workers on the streets, in theaters, business houses and the postoffice lobby are busy.

If you have not purchased health seals, do so today.

The Christmas Boom

From the Toronto Globe one learns that Canada has gone in for a bigger and better Christmas. Merchants in many different lines agree that for the first time in five years the public is really enjoying spending its money. Last year the shoppers' slogan was "Have you nothing cheaper?" This year it is, "Have you nothing better?"

The same thing has been noted in all parts of the United States. People have money to spend and they are spending it. Incidentally they are spending it on the whole rather wisely. They are looking for suitability and excellence in their Christmas gifts, in everything from children's toys to useful articles for grown-ups. A book reviewer recently commented on the report from publishers and book sellers that the "gift book" which was mostly for show and very little for reading and thoughtful enjoyment has practically lost favor. Book-buyers seem to be also book-lovers and they are therefore choosing books for their contents instead of their covers.

Right now, of course, Christmas things are leading in purchases. But the good tendencies observable in December are likely to hold over in 1926 in a continued season of cheerful and useful buying. Prosperity is the basis of the Christmas boom, and it will be the basis of the better furnishing of homes and the improvement of other living conditions.

The Deserving Fiddler

The country will owe a debt of gratitude to "Granpa Mellie" Dunbar, of Maine, aged 72, for his timely and wholesome contributions to American music and dancing.

This old gentleman bears the double distinction of being a first-class snowshoe maker and a first-class fiddler of a type now almost extinct.

Henry Ford, who is also deserving of gratitude in this connection, brought "Mellie" from the Maine woods to Detroit to help along Henry's revival of old-fashioned dances. The fiddler remained until Ford's orchestra had mastered the sweet old tunes and Ford's musical mechanics had assembled them in a book that is soon to be published. He would take nothing more from Ford than his regular "three dollars a night" for his playing.

Now the fiddler has gone to New York, announcing frankly that he intends to cash in on his sudden fame.

"Me and Ma have had honor enough," he says. "What we want now is enough money to see us through."

They deserve it, and will probably get it. The fiddler, as well as the laborer, is worthy of his hire.

Perfume, Smoke, Education

The headline: "Perfume, Smoke and Public Schools," may inspire the hasty reader to exclaim, "Oh, these terrible young people! Whatever are they coming to!"

But the headline really refers to the shortcomings of the elders instead of the indulgence of the youngsters.

It captioned an editorial in the October issue of The American Educational Digest. The editorial commented on the already much-heralded fact that this country spends almost twice as much on tobacco as on public school instruction and that the cost of cosmetics, perfumes and soft drinks also far exceed the expenditure for education.

It seems to be generally conceded that something is slightly amiss with our educational system and that the children themselves are furnishing some difficult problems.

Perhaps part of the trouble lies in the disproportionate expenditures for passing things and for education. And part may lie in the adult state of mind which resents increasing the school expenditure.

The Detroit News wants to know how they make change in Armenia, where eggs pass for money. Well, how do we break a dollar?

World peace seems to be mostly a matter of equipping diplomacy with snubbers, balloon tires and four-wheel brakes.

"National Cost of Living Is Going Up." That would worry us all more if the national income were not going up, too.

The Terrible Tempered Mr. Bang— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—The lengthening of Second avenue is to end the existence of a famous institution—the National Winter Garden Burlesque on East Houston street. For many years it has tickled the amusement palate of the East Side with old time burlesque.

It is sponsored by the Minsky Brothers who have rolled up a fortune doling out slap-stick laughs. One thing may be said for the National Winter Garden—it is different. One reads a placard over the box office: "A nominal charge will be made on all passes."

An on the front curtain is scrolled: "The show's the thing—Will Shakespeare." The theatre is five floors up and you ascend in an elevator but you descend down fire escapes. It costs money to keep an elevator runner on at nights.

A patron may yell, whistle and stamp his feet but if he essays a bit of wisecracking he receives what Second avenue calls "a rap on the conk." The house policemen are hard guys who are imprevious to sympathy. When they swat they swat.

Everybody smokes and between acts they sell charlotte russes, heaven knows why. The actresses wear pink tights. "So it looks like their skin, Boob" an usher said. If a lady stoops over—whack, goes the whang stick deftly weilded by a red nosed comic with splay feet.

It is hilarious commonness and some of the jokes need formaldehyde but everybody has a good time. It is about the last stand of the quip that ends in a resounding whack over the head with a pig-bladder. Ladies are listed on the program as Miss I. Gettem, Miss Holdem Yale and Miss Bee Yourself.

Sprinkled among the audience are uptown "bloods" who regard a trip to the National Winter Garden as a bit of slumming. Any attempt to leave until the performance ends is met with the ignominy of swift hisses. The East Side is jealous of its artists.

Morningside reveals the domestic side of Columbia college. It is where teachers and students live. A peaceful area that gives a view of Harlem roof flapping with wet wash. Spinster teachers live there with widowed mothers. The atmosphere is intellectual. There are few lighted windows after 10 o'clock. The district is dotted with clean, low priced restaurants.

In the old Chinete theatre in Doyers street in Chinatown gospel services are held at 10 o'clock nightly. A welcome sign reads: "Drunkards, drug adicts and the homeless and friendless are welcome." Thomas J. Noonan, the superintendent, a ruddy cheeked man, greets them. It was to one of these services that "The Swamp Lily," so named because she came from the damp cellars where only the human fungi grows, drifted one night. Shortly before her Chinese husband had been killed in a tong war and her world collapsed. She was converted and spent years reclaiming sinners. Now and then a forlorn soul is salvaged out of the turbulent currents. The benches are mostly filled with blurry eyed wrecks but none are considered hopeless for salvation. Over the rostrum hangs a painting of "Sophie the Scrubwoman" once a gin drinking hag who died a saintly white haired woman who consecrated her last years to comforting the forlorn.

A man who had made his mark and deserted everything for war service toiled paintfully over West 53rd street. One hand was off at the wrist and his left leg was cork. In the thickening shadows a typical New York street loafer sat on the running board of an idle taxi talking to a driver. "What's the dope you, carrying a cane?" inquired the loafer impertinently. A burst ear drum made it necessary for the war relic to have the question repeated. "I am forced to carry a cane. I was foolish enough to aid in making the world safe for such ruffians as you" was what he thought. He said nothing.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The New Congress Convenes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19.—Sunday it was hot, and Monday it was, and it acted something like an electric shock. Sunday was merely the calm, on Monday came the electric storm.

It flashed through the streets of Washington and the populace stirred. It contacted with the homes, theatres, offices, and the inhabitants jerked with new energy. It penetrated the hives of the government departments and they buzzed with new zest. It burned through the crowds on F street and Pennsylvania avenue and quickened the click of heels. It sputtered around the positive pole of the White House and struck, creating an explosion in the form of a presidential speech that set the full machinery of the United States government in motion. It packed quite a kick, in fact. The Sixty-ninth Congress had convened.

Atop the American Olympus, in the great building astride Capitol Hill, the political gods of the United States sit in more or less solemn conclave. Amid great salvos of oratorical thunder they convened, December 7, when several hundred legislative Joves gathered at high noon, after the precedent long since set, and, responding to the rap of the gavel, assumed an attitude that bore some resemblance to order.

Their lightning was seen in every civilized land, and the presidential explosion it caused when it struck was heard 'round the world. It was not merely the Sixty-ninth Congress that was convening; it was the United States Congress.

But, unlike their mythical prototypes of Hellenic lore, their concourse was exposed to mortal eyes. Legislative immortals though they are, the noblesse of the dignified profession of American lawgiving, their meeting was witnessed by the multitude, plebeian and patrician alike. And all those who could, jammed their way into the aisles and seats, even to the doorways of the Congressional galleries. And those that were not near enough to make their pilgrimage to the gathering, heard the rumbling thunder of their respective Joves through the columns of the press.

From the mansions and hovels of Washington, from the embassies and legations, came the audience. Effete Washington, surfeited thought it is with excellencies and honorables, always enthuses over Congress. From Chevy Chase to Four and a Half street, the natives are electrified by the gathering of the gods. It is a convention that Washington does not have to fight for with other cities, and it has been convening for more than a century, but its charm is always potent, and its satellites in the capital are as numerous as ever.

A Splendid Spectacle.

Its opening the other day was a great spectacle. The galleries were laden to the point where they looked as if the addition of the camel's last straw would precipitate the mass of watching humanity upon the gathering below. And, although the convening of both houses was compelling, the House claimed the longer share of interest the first day.

Here there was a speaker to be elected. Here there were rules to be snarled over and there there was to be contested the challenge that the Democratic - Insurgent forces had thrown into the face of the Republicans.

While Clerk William Tyler Page droned the roll call, the constituent charmers proceeded to do their familiar act for the House galleries. They chattered and chortled, saluted and smiled, and the staccato of backslapping beat a genial rhythm to the general conversational symphony. The voice of the clerk could scarcely be heard above the racket, and his articulation was lost in the storm of voices that swept the chamber. His frequent hammerings brought little response from the greeters, and, once shown the way, the chattering galleries refused to comply with the order-commanding gavel. But, as if they were adept lip readers, the members let him know that they were present, and that seemed to satisf yhim.

Everything was excitement, but above the clerk's head, and later above Speaker Longworth, there sat, and sits at every session of the House, a granite-faced group, glowering at the maelstrom below and around them, like so many owls on a limb. The numerous rounds of applause elicited no quiver of emotion from them. Their inscrutable countenances were broken only by sardonic smiles. They even looked bored at times. For it was the old familiar song and dance to them—they were newspaper men.

But, when the House elected the speaker and the enthusiastic multitude acclaimed Longworth in his procession to the chair, a novice in the press gallery disclosed that he was thoroughly excited. His outburst was cut off like a displeasing radio performance, when some seore of scribes threw him a look that might have meant anything, but which really did mean, "Act your age, stupid!"

One Who Respected the Gavel.

There was one there who respected the pounding gavel. She gazed at him from her gallery seat and the gaze was one of complacency. She surveyed the House through her lorgnette, and perhaps there flashed memories into her mind of other sessions some two decades ago, when her dynamic father sat in the White House. And the memory of her in those days is vivid in the minds of Washingtonians and to some of the veterans of the chamber of which her husband is now spcaker. For it was Alice Longworth, the Princess Alice of Roosevelt's days in the White House.

Over in the Senate the next day, the hoary-headed statesmen were warming up for the coming battles. Strangely clashing with the usual aged appearance of the senior chamber were the youthful physiognomies of Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Harreld of Oklahoma. These two young men, both in their early thirties, are the youngest members the senate has had in half a century. But youth seems to be conducive to success in the senate. Henry Clay was only 29 when he took the oath. No challenge of his eligibility was made, although the constitution provides that no senator shall be under 30.

To show that his withering satire and polemic propensities are as brilliant as ever, Senator Reed of Missouri engaged Senator Moses in a bit of repartee, which set the senate and the galleries laughing. Senator Swanson and Senator Norris joined the Missouri senator and the debate was enlivened by sharp invective, coated with oratorical unguents.

But the biggest act came when the senators began the introduction of bills. Perhaps they remember an incident of March 4 last, when a man named Dawes took them to task about the little matter of senatorial rules. At any rate, when the bill introduction got under way the entire personnel was on its feet demanding recognition.

Mr. Dawes was obviously bewildered. He looked from one to the other, while the demands for recognition were hurled at him. The senators were laughing, for they were enjoying their little joke. And Mr. Dawes' predicament was becoming embarrassing. He asked the states of some of the senators and the clerk told him. But finally, with a determined attitude, born of desperation, he began at the extreme right of the Democratic side and went around to the extreme left of the Republican side, taking the senators in their seating order, as the order in which they asked recognition was impossible to determine.

The Sixty-ninth Congress convened with a huge stack of bills before it, with the naval muddle and the aircraft mess up to it, and, with the eyes of the world upon it.

But the most interested of all are the Washingtonians. Washington now moves faster, is gayer, in short, is now completely itself. A part of Washington is missing with Congress out of session. But now Washington is all that it should be. The gods are present.

RULE AGAINST LIBRARY USE AS COURTROOM

Carnegie Corporation Says it Would be Breach of Faith.

LETTER TO MAYOR

Attention Directed to Proposal by Clippings From Newspaper.

Use the second floor of the Carnegie library for the home of East Liverpool's new municipal court would not be "keeping faith with the donor," according to word received today by Mayor Charles Brown from James Bertram, secretary of the Carnegie corporation, New York.

Bertram forwarded newspaper clippings, telling of council's proposed plan of converting unoccupied rooms on the second floor of the library building, Broadway and Fourth street, for court purposes.

"It must be realized that the building was asked and given for free library purposes," Mr. Bertram's letter read. "These buildings have usually included in the basement a lecture room, directly supplementing library work through lectures, literary clubs, etc. Other than that the building cannot be used for any but strictly library purposes and still keep faith with the donor."

The library board after hearing council's plan to use the building refused to consider the request, holding that the use of the building might be a violation of the grant by which the building was erected and donated to the city.

The solons later leased the second and third floors of the George C. Thompson building, Fourth and Market streets, for the new court.

TAX CUT BILL BEFORE SENATE

Numerous Amendments Planned in Upper House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The $325,000,000 tax reduction bill, passed by the house in record time and by a record vote, went to the senate today where it will not receive such speedy attention or respect as the house accorded it.

Numerous amendments are planned for it in the senate, and the most sanguine supporters do not expect it to emerge in final form until early March. It will be the aim, however, to get it through by March 15, the date on which returns are due for 1925 incomes.

Only 25 votes were cast against the bill in the house, as against the overwhelming total of 390 in its favor. The opposition was furnished by the Republican insurgents and a handful of Democrats, all of whom contended that it was a "rich man's tax bill" and did not give the "little fellow" a proportionate cut.

"Under this bill," said Representative Rainey (D.) of Illinois, "only 214 taxpayers benefit by about $60,000,000, whereas 2,300,000 taxpayers are benefited about $10 apiece. Is that a fair tax bill?"

Rainey referred to the 50 per cent cut in the surtaxes on big incomes.

In the senate the bill goes to the finance committee where the Democrats plan numerous changes in its present provisions.

20 Crippled Tots Will be Guests at Rotary Luncheon

Twenty crippled children, who have received hospitalization through the Rotary club will be guests of the Rotarians at their luncheon meeting in the banquet hall of the Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday.

The children will be brought to the luncheon in automobiles and taken home afterwards. Arrangements have been made to have Santa Claus distribute candy, fruit and other gifts to the little guests.

Music will be furnished by the Seven Sirens, a girls' orchestra led by Mrs. Danks Cochran. Martin Abbott, of Wellsville, will be chairman of the meeting. The plan of having wives of club members in attendance at the luncheon has been abandoned.

MITCHELL ROW STILL BOILING

Rumors of Resignations Heard—"Flying Colonel" Silent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19. — Rather than quieting down as was expected by the war department, the controversy kicked up by Colonel William Mitchell continued to boil today.

From a variety of sources came disquieting news to military officials who believed the court-martial decision would mark the closing chapter in their long drawn out fight over an aviation policy with the "flying colonel."

Reports from scattered sections of the country indicated that an imposing number of resignations might be turned in by military sympathizers of Mitchell. Many congressmen have indicated they are out "gunning" for the war department, and the army personnel itself is divided over the fairness of the suspension verdict.

The gravest concern was felt by many officials over the possibility that the department's appropriations would be fought in congress in retaliation for the bitter fight against the aviator.

Mitchell himself continued to remain silent today. He told friends that until his sentence had gone through departmental channels to the president and been finally passed upon, he would have "nothing to say."

President's Kin Challenges Mellie In Fiddle Playing

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Dec. 19.—"I can fiddle Mellie Dunham all hollow. Ask Cal, he knows."

"Uncle John" J. Wilder, relative of the president by marriage, was speaking today—Vermont challenging Maine.

"Uncle John" let it be known, too, that the boyish feet of Calvin Coolidge of 10 moved to the rhythmic music of the Vermont fiddle.

"I've played a good deal in my time," declared "Uncle John," who is 79 and has been fiddling 66 years. "Mellie" Dunham, Maine champion who played for Henry Ford, has been fiddling only 58 years.

"I've played for dances all over Vermont," continued "Uncle John." "If Dunham says he filled every corner of the hall, why I rise to state that I crowded and crushed the corner with fiddle music."

ALLEGED BURGLAR DOES DAREDEVIL STUNTS IN VAIN SEARCH FOR LIQUOR

BOSTON, Dec. 19—A leap from the ledge of the third story of a South End house across a six-foot areaway through the glass window into a room where two girls were sleeping, a 30-foot drop from another window to the street, the dodging of bullets from a policeman's revolver and a collapse in the street from a bullet wound in the knee—these were the highlights in the sensational chase and capture today of James L. Johnson, 27, of Hartford, Conn., who, with a companion, attempted to burgle a drug store of liquor and narcotics.

George V. Hout, 24, also of Hartford, was captured inside the drug store.

"What a fool I am, I did this for women," Johnson told police.

Two women, one a chorus girl, found in the hotel room where Johnson and Hout were stopping were questioned.

"THAT'S THAT" CAST SELECTED

De Molay Show Will be Staged Here Dec. 28-29.

Selection of the cast which will present the musical comedy, "That's That," under the auspices of Harding Chapter, Order of DeMolay, at the High school auditorium, Monday and Tuesday, December 28 and 29, has been completed.

Rehearsals are being conducted nightly in the grill room of the Masonic temple, Broadway, the work being in charge of Larry Knowles, a trained director with the John B. Rogers Producing company of Fostoria.

One of the features of the production is a chorus of eight girls who will dance the Charleston and other late steps. Pennsylvania railroad officials from Pittsburgh started an investigation of the accident.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19. — Pennsylvania train No. 32, a night pullman from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia, was wrecked at Bennington, Pa., early today, according to meagre advices received at the company's offices here.

Pennsylvania railroad officials rushed to the scene of the accident.

TODAY

New York city. Millions upon millions are poured out; no one notices it.

One man, F. F. French, announces a building project to supply living quarters for 800,000 people. They will be housed in buildings towering toward the sky and covering a small plot on Manhattan island. In one corner of New York there will be a new little group of 800,000 people, in itself, "One of the great cities of America."

What will happen if New York ever has a real estate boom?

Sir Oliver Lodge thinks the human race may be 100,000 years old. Human beings and their history are "still in the morning of time," says the great scientist. If it be true that we are only 12,000 years from the late stone age, the other 88,000 years might well have been enough to raise men from a long-toothed, heavy-jawed "primitive" to the relatively civilized stone age man.

Change are slow or they are violently rapid. For thousands of years men were content to travel on animals, or slowly moving, clumsy vehicles.

And in less than one century came the change to the steam railroad, automobiles, flying machine, the submarine and from the messenger on foot to wireless.

What will the race do in the next 1,000,000 years?

You have seen a picture of the flood with women, children, tigers and other wild beasts gathered on a narrow ledge of rock, not hurting each other. The flood curbed their fierceness.

Similarly, in France, with the franc in danger, you see "Conservatives," "Moderates," extreme radicals, crowding together to help the franc, forgetting hatred for each other.

"If the franc should go, all would go," says the leaders, "and even though we hate each other we must consider that fact."

But the franc won't go, and one fine day those that are selling it short will wake up with a headache.

England, celebrating Locarno, suggests to France: "Let's cut down our fighting air fleet and save money."

France imitates Brother Rabbit and says nothing. The French have the fighting air machines, and with them they have safety. The English have gigantic fleets on the water, battleships out of date, merchant ships at the mercy of flyers.

Every little French boy learns by heart La Fontaine's fable about the fox with his tail cut off. France will keep her air force.

Coolidge, Kellogg and Senate Leaders Confer.

FEB. 15 MEETING

Plan Discussion of Disarmament Session Program.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The United States probably will be represented in the meeting of the powers at Geneva on Feb. 15, next, to discuss the preliminaries and arrangements for the disarmament conference that the League of Nations proposes to stage at a later date.

Definite decision is still lacking, but it was learned today that the conferences that have been proceeding between President Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg and senate leaders have developed a general feeling that the United States should take part in the preliminary discussions—irrespective of what later action is determined upon in relation to the conference itself.

President Coolidge is proceeding cautiously in the matter. He has informed senate leaders that he does not wish to undertake any commitments unless he is assured of the general support of congress, whose sanction would be necessary in any event before the United States could fully participate in the conference.

REQUESTS 12 YULE TREES

Salvation Army Asks Aid in Christmas Relief Plans.

A request for about a dozen Christmas trees, small and large, for decorating purposes, was made by Field Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, today.

The Salvation Army is also in need of lumber with which to build a temporary store house and shelves for the 300 Christmas dinners which will be distributed to needy families of the district. Any one having lumber which might be used for this purpose are requested to communicate with Major Hughes at the Army barracks.

Mr. Hughes received a report from Chester last evening that a collection from a Sunday school had been turned over to the representatives of a relief organization believed to be the Salvation Army. Mr. Hughes stated that the money had not been turned into the local organization and that it probably went to an organization in Moundsville, which is engaged in welfare work among convicts as they are released from the state penitentiary.

The relief fund today totaled $2,054.24, which is approximately two-thirds of the amount needed to finance the winter's relief work. Collections yesterday included $84, which came in through the mails, $19.36, which was deposited in the kettles, and $17.54 which a committee secured through personal solicitation.

and powdered mica for snow effects instead of the highly dangerous paper clippings and cotton.

"Do not illuminate the tree with candles. Colored electric light assemblies are more ornamental and if used with care, are safer. A spot light focused upon the tree is, however, the safest method of all, and gives a highly pleasing effect.

"Smokers should exercise great care with their matches and smoking materials while near trees and decorations. Keep matches out of the reach of small children.

Avoid Cotton Whiskers.

"Toys requiring alcohol, gasoline or kerosene should be avoided, as should the flimsy toy motion-picture machines using inflammable films.

"Cheap electrical playthings should be forbidden, as they are often defectively wired and have insecure, dangerous connections. Such electrical apparatus may cause serious burns and fires.

"If it is felt that Santa Claus must be present at the celebration, the impersonator should avoid long cotton whiskers, and should keep away from open lights and fires. As an additional precaution, the costume used should be made partially fireproof by spraying upon it a solution of water glass, obtainable at any drug store.

"If any one's clothing does catch fire, the victim should be promptly rolled in a rug or woolen cloth in order to smother the flames, which should be kept from the face.

"In order to prevent the spread of any fires that may start, a bucket or two of water and a fire extinguisher should be kept ready at hand.

"Merchants should keep their places of business free from such rubbish and paper accumulations, and should insist that employes keep all exits clear.

"A most important safeguard is to remove all evergreens immediately after Christmas, before they become completely dried out."

SEAL CAMPAIGN NEARING CLOSE

Drive Being Directed By Members of Woman's Club.

Annual Christmas health seal campaign in Chester and viciniy under the auspices of the Chester Woman's club of which Mrs. J. E. Swindell is chairman, is drawing to a close with the approach of Christmas.

More than thirteen million of the official anti-tuberculosis seals have been distributed throughout the state by the West Virginia Tuberculosis association, to the affiliated county seal committees who assumed the responsibility by contract to organize and conduct the campaign. In other counties seals have been mailed direct to thousands of persons, so that they may have an opportunity to purchase them and thus participate in the organized effort being made by the state organization for the prevention of tuberculosis and the promotion of public health in the state.

In a recent letter to the Tuberculosis Seal committee Governor Howard M. Gore endorsed the program of the state association as follows:

"The West Virginia Tuberculosis association is rendering valiant service in the effort to control the great white plague in this state. The substantially expressed good will of the public in support of this worthy cause, will have a desirable effect upon the volunteer expansion program. Likewise, it will stimulate and promote the work of our state and county official health and educational departments.

"I take this opportunity as governor of the state, to extend sincere appreciation for the helpful service of the county chairman and co-workers in the seal sale that month of December of this year."

BANQUET HELD FOR GRID SQUAD

Members of the Chester high school football team, their parents, and members of the faculty and board of education, held their annual banquet last evening in the basement of the First Christian church.

An elaborate dinner was served by the mothers of the players, places being arranged for about 35 persons.

At the close of the dinner talks were given by each of the players, faculty and board of education members and fathers of the lads.

TRUCK DRIVER IS FINED BY MAYOR

Patsy Frontone, truck operator, charged with violating traffic laws, was arrested last night by local police and, at a hearing before Mayor F. C. Blackburn, was fined $8.50.

The charge against Frontone was filed by traction company officials. The motorman of a westbound interurban street car asserted that Frontone, who was driving along the rails ahead of the car, failed to pull over off the street car right of way when the motorman signalled. Frontone is alleged to have held up the car for several blocks.

DIVORCE CASES HEARD BY COURT

Decrees Handed Down in Five Actions Here Yesterday.

Edith Fisher has been granted a decress of divorce from her husband Benjamin Fisher on the grounds of three years' wilful absence. The custoday of an adopted child was awarded Mrs. Fisher, but the court made an order that Fisher was to be permitted to visit the child at reasonable times.

Gross neglest of duty was charged in the petition for divorce filed by Thomas Barnett against his wife Blanche Barnett and after the testimony of a number of witnesses were heard the court granted the prayer of the petition, awarding a decress of divorce to the plaintiff.

Three years wilful absence wis charged in the divorce petition filed by Hazel McMillen against her husband, John McMillen and a decree was granted Mrs. McMillen. The court also awarded the custody of the children to the plaintiff.

In the case of May Furnival against her husband Joseph C. Furnival, it was set up in the petition that the defendant was guilty of frequent intoxication and a decree was awarded the plaintiff. In this case Furnival was ordered by the court to pay his wife $40 alimony within 10 days, and thereafter until further order of court $6 per week for the support of a child.

Bernice Jane Palmer has been granted a divorce from her husband, Elwood Thomas Palmer, on the grounds of gross neglect of duty. Palmer has been ordered by the court to pay his wife $20 for the support of a child.

The divorce action pending in common pleas court of Marie Prince of Salem against her husband, Paul Prince, which was to have come up before Judge Moore has been passed. This case will be contested.

NEW SALE BILL MARK RECORDED

Another record was cracked in the office of Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine Friday when 129 bills of sale were recorded, this being an increase of six above the record of Tuesday, when 123 were received for record.

Should the present activity in this department of the clerk of courts office continue, it is believed that the August record will be exceeded, when a few more than 1,600 bills of sale were recorded. The present activity is due to the fact that no licenses are to be granted owners of automobiles unless a bill of sale, previously recorded, is presented at the time of application for a license is made.

Journal Entry Approved.

An entry made by Judge James G. Moore Dec. 7th last in the case of John Rogers of Salem as plaintiff in error against the state of Ohio as defendant in error, in which the decision of the lower court, or that of Mayor George Russell of Salem was affirmed has been set aside and a new journal entry has been approved.

DAMAGE ACTION SETTLED HERE

A settlement has been reached in the $1,000 damage action filed in common pleas court by Virginia Belle Shope, aged 7 years, of Salem, which was filed by her father, as her next friend, against Laurence L. McCluggage. There was a trial to the court, a jury being waived, and a settlement was made on a basis of $200. The case grew out of an automobile accident, and was filed several days ago, so that a court record could be had as to the adjustment of the claim.

Court Confirms Sale.

In the case of Edwin W. Powers against Rosetta Guy, the court has confirmed the sale of certain premises and a deed and distribution has been ordered. In this action the petition of the defendant has been dismissed by the court without prejudice.

Cold Days—HOT Motors

The weather has little effect upon the operating temperature of your motor. It may be freezing outside, yet within the engine's combustion chamber, the temperature is approximately 2000° F., as usual.

Why, then, should you use some special motor oil in winter? Isn't it necessary that at all times you use the oil highest in heat resisting properties—one that is never doctored at the expense of its protective properties?

FREEDOM Perfect Motor Oil has a heat test 100 degrees higher than ordinary oils. It is refined from 100% Pennsylvania Crude by specialists of 46 years experience. Continue to ask for it by name.

For his own family Santa Claus chooses Gifts That Last

SOME folks think of the jewelry store as the place to go, chiefly, for those gifts where expense is the second consideration.

But not Santa Claus! That canny old gift expert knows better than that!

He judges the worth of a gift not alone by what it costs, but by what it yields—in service and satisfaction. . . . And long ago, he discovered that a dollar goes farther at the jewelry store than it does anywhere else, in procuring enduring usefulness and pleasure.

For the jeweler deals in imperishables—in gifts that last, like the fidelity of a fine friendship, for as long as life itself!

Specializing in jewels, the jeweler sees to it that every article in his stock is truly a jewel. And whether it be for adornment or for utility, it must measure up to jewel-standards, in craftsmanship and integrity.

He who must coddle a lean purse or she who may indulge a fat one, both will find there the gifts they would most like to give—comfortably priced within their respective Christmas budgets.

But whatever the price, the quality is always jeweler's quality—uncompromising in its fine standards.

Ask Santa Claus! He knows!

REPORT IS MADE ON SCHOOL FIRES

A. A. Dorsey, deputy state fire marshal, has returned to Charleston after an inspection of school houses in the northern counties of the state.

An examination of the fire marshal's records revealed that 14 West Virginia school houses were burned between July 1 and November 30. That is exactly the same number that were destroyed in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924.

Despite the marked increase of fires, the fire hazards of school buildings have been reduced, in the opinion of Mr. Topping and Mr. Dorsey. Most of these fires are due to neighborhood feuds and to controversies between the school authorities on the one hand and parents and pupils on the other, it was said.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

"ATLANTIS" IN PACIFIC MYTH, SCIENCE HOLDS

Noted Geologist of Vienna Discredits Theories of Sunken Continent in Western Seas.

Honolulu.—"Lemurial," "Mu," and all the other hypothetical vast land areas forming "lost" Pacific continents, like the lost Atlantis of ancient European imagination, receive no credence on the part of Dr. Francis Xavier Schaffer, noted geologist of Vienna, now traveling in the Pacific area and the Orient. Doctor Schaffer is backed up in his opinions also by the scientists at the Bernice P. Bishop museum of Honolulu.

Though no land areas of continental size ever existed in the Pacific, Doctor Schaffer believed, there are regions or movable zones where emergence and submergence are constantly in progress.

"Such a line," he said, "goes all around the Pacific and connects the Antarctic continent with the continents of the southern hemisphere. It is easy, too, to see that the northern continents may more than once have been connected by way of the Bering strait and by the rising of the relatively shallow sea bottom between Greenland and Europe.

Dr. Herbert E. Gregory, director of the Bishop museum, disagrees with the theory advanced by Dr. J. Macmillan Brown, chancellor of the University of New Zealand, who claims that the Pacific islands are the remnants of a once great empire that collapsed into the ocean in a series of cataclysms.

"Geological evidence," said Doctor Gregory, "gives no proof that there ever was a large area of land in the central Pacific. No rock has been found which could be considered part of an old continent. The only way that geologists will ever be able to make a real test of these theories will be by an extensive system of borings which must extend through the coral and the comparatively new levels of the islands, and also by a carefully planned sounding of the Pacific ocean."

"The lost-continent theory cannot be substantiated by botanical discoveries," said Dr. Forest B. H. Brown, botantist of the Bishop museum. "In the Hawaiian islands, for instance, over 80 per cent of the plants with net-veined leaves occur nowhere else in the world. Had Hawaii been a part of a continent of which the other Pacific islands were also parts, one would expect more plants in common to all."

Gypsy "King" Sails for Europe to Find "Queen"

New York.—Frank Kaslov, "king of American gypsies," is on the way to Europe to find a gypsy princess to make his queen.

The weeping and wailing of his followers at a steamship pier caused consternation to a special detail of secret service men who were escorting the Italian debt commission, headed by Count Giuseppe Volpi, to board a liner. A special guard accompanied them to the pier because of demonstrations by anti-Fascist Italians upon their arrival.

Wails, screams and cries greeted the party on arrival at the pier. The Italians learned that the followers of Kaslov, whose wife died a year ago, were giving him a farewell party as he set forth to find a new gypsy queen. Gypsy law, it was explained, requires that he must have a consort of royal blood and he is going to Venice to find one. He is forty-two and has six children.

"Man on The Box" Puts Syd Chaplin Again at the Top

Warner Brothers outbid all other picture producers for the services of Syd Chaplin, because they believed they had the very story he needed to duplicate his phenomenal success in "Charley's Aunt."

"The Man on the Box," the celebrated novel and play by Harold MacGrath was the vehicle selected for Chaplin, and it will begin a three-day run on Monday, at the American theatre with Chaplin heading a cast that includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles F. Reisner, Charles Gerrard and Henry Barrows.

The story concerns the adventures of charming Bob Warburton, who finds himself amusingly involved in a hornet's nest of intrigue that leaves him homeless and jobless, in the mysterious night, clad only in his pajamas. He has invested $50,000 in a new flying machine and two Russian spys are intent upon stealing the plans of the plane. Romance stalks unfettered throughout the picture, which is said to be a series of ridiculous misadventures.

Charles A. Logue adapted the novel to the screen, and Julien Josephson wrote the scenario. Charles "Chuck" Reisner directed.

Highs Lose to F. & M. Academy Five After Game Struggle

Lorah Passers Show Strength In Opener

Hold Visitors on Even Footing for Two Periods and Take Lead in Third, Only to Lose When Taylor Combine Stages Great Rally.

THAT well known Horatius Cocles, hero of ancient Rome, who so valiantly defended the equally known Sublician bridge over the Tiber against the advancing Tarquins put up no gamer scrap against his harrassers, displayed no greater courage in the face of odds, than did Lorah's Blue and White youngsters last night in their inaugural cour appearance here against Sam Taylor's fast, heavy Franklin & Marshall accademy quintet, who carried off a 33 to 27 triumph after the toughest scrap they've run into this year.

Only a mighty fourth quarter rally by the Pennsylvanians, who, in this period, came from behind a five-point lead held by the locals and piled up 13 counters, enabled them to win.

Greatly outweighed and playing their first real game, the Lorah five left little room for criticism.

At no time during the entire scrap, until the fourth period, were Sam Taylor's proteges out in front by more than a point or so. On frequent occasions the score was tied. And, finally, in the third period when Tom Pusey began a bombardment of the F. & M. hoop, the East Liverpool passers actually went into the lead and held it for the larger portion of the period against the desperate lunges of an equally desperate foe.

Fresh from two recent victories, scoring 84 points in one and 54 in the other, the Pennsylvanians, in that third period, were staring defeat in the face, defeat by a bunch of lightweight youngsters playing their first game as a team. As a result, the visitors waged a do or die battle in the concluding frame, and the locals, their endurance waning under the constant hammering, saw Wyant, Kunzler, Beaver and Bob Pusey slip in the field goals that won.

Lorah's five displayed a snappy offense and their defense was first rate. Guards Wyant and McConville, of F. & M., two old heads at the game, successfully kept the East Liverpool forwards from immediate reach of the baskets the majority of the time, but this failed to have any effect on Tom Pusey, who caged the leather six times during the game, chiefly from mid-floor territory.

The East Liverpool defense had an equal effect on the visitors' offensive movements and they, too, utilized long shots at frequent intervals.

The foul shooting was the weak spot. In 15 attempts the visitors made three good ones. The locals had a similar record. A lot of points went to waste here.

In the preliminary, played by girls' teams, the Blues defeated the Reds, 13 to 9.

Tonight Franklin and Marshall will clash with the East Liverpool Ex-Collegians at the high school court. Another capacity house is expected.

"Kid Alberts" Is Now Perfecting Bismarck Hook

"Kid Alberts."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 17.—"Kid Alberts" is now Mr. Al Graff. His profession is now law instead of pugilism. From one of the best known boxers in the middle west he hopes to become as equally well known a lawyer. In other words, "Kid Alberts" has just passed the Missouri bar examination and entered upon the practice of law.

His story reads like a page torn from fiction. Instead of "working his way through college," he literally "fought his way through college."

In the years he attended high school in St. Louis, he earned his expenses by means of frequent matches which netted him a few more dollars each time. When he entered the law school of Washington University here five years ago, he had already attained such a reputation that the university hired him as its first instructor in boxing and wrestling. In this way he earned his education.

POSTPONE GAME AT COLUMBIANA

Although the Power class five made its appearance last Wednesday night on the Columbiana court for their game with the Miller Brothers quint, the game had to be postponed until Dec. 30. Just before game time, the Columbiana electric power supply failed. A large crowd of fans was disappointed.

The Miller Brothers will play in East Liverpool probably on Monday, Dec. 28.

The local passers would like to arrange games with the Salem Aces and other Salem teams as well as squads in Alliance, East Palestine, Salineville and other sections of the district. Dewey Geren, Box 92, Wellsville, is manager.

JOEY SEWELL KNOWS THE REASON For Baseball Bats League Pitchers Will Aver

Nothing, to the mind of the average baseball fan, can look more absurd and negligible, than a husky .300 hitter swinging wildly three times and then walking to the bench.

This being the case, Joey Sewell, peppery shortstop of the Cleveland Indians, has had fewer occasions to be the recipient of pitying glances, disparaging remarks and uncouth catcalls than any other player in the American league in recent seasons.

For 1st year he struck out but four times in the whole campaign. In 1924 he fanned just 13 times and in the preceding season 12 times—a total of but 29 whiffs in three years. Which is a minor number of whiffs, even in these days of prohibition.

Admitted Joey's size—he's a scant pint in size—and the fact that he bats from the first base side of the plate may have something to do with his success in connecting these angles cannot be the only factors. There are several men in the circuit who have these same qualifications. But Sewell, the records indicate, also has an uncanny ability to pick one and connect. He may drive one into a waiting fielder's hands, of course, but he connects—and by that simple act places the opposing team on the defensive, opens the way for possible blunders, and a chance to reach first.

And despite the shortcoming of the season, the failure of Judge Landis to eliminate circus seats, and the raise given Ban Johnson, the main idea in baseball is to reach first base.

Kaplan Ably Defends Title Against Herman

Keeps Challenger Off Balance Through 15 Rounds by Beating Him to the Punch; Pacific Coast Fighter Slows up Toward End.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, champion, was the winner over Babe Herman, challenger from California, and the seventh time proved it. It wasn't even close. Kaplin simply bulldozed the challenger out of any idea he may have had of winning the featherweight championship of the world and the Meriden entry breezed home in defense of his title.

Kaplan kept his man off balance through the greater part of fifteen rounds by beating him to the punch. He led from the opening bell and, being in wonderful condition, carried the pace to Herman all the way. He was just a little bit too strong for the challenger, who, being a smart young man, realized this fact at the earliest moment and conducted himself accordingly.

Herman, as a challenger, was a very second-rate proposition. Ordinarily, he was supposed to have something on Kaplan in a man to man duel, but last night the business went wrong. Kaplan, in wonderful condition, bounced out of his corner nad proceeded to slap the challenger silly at the opening bell. He kept on doing it for the remainder of the fifteen rounds.

Kaplan Forces Fight.

The fight substantiated more or less Kaplan's assertion that he was a sick man in their previous meeting at Waterbury, Conn., when the champion was badly beaten by the Californian, although the Judges decided otherwise.

Kaplan won because he forced the battle all the way. The pace was too fast for Herman, who slowed up noticeably toward the end of the fight.

Herman was at no time in danger, however, as Kaplan's blows lacked knockout force. The Californian landed many clean wallops but never had the champion worried.

Kaplan carried the fighting through the first six rounds, winning them easily. He excelled Herman both at infighting and exchanging wallops at long range.

The only damage inflicted by Herman during these rounds was a blow to Kaplan's nose in the first round and a right which drew blood from the champion's left ear in the third.

Herman Rallied in Tenth.

Herman's big chance came in the tenth session, but he failed to take advantage of it. Two hard rights to the jaw staggered the champion whose knees sagged. The Californian landed a terrific barrage of rights and lefts to Kaplan's jaw, but the champion weathered the storm and floored the challenger with a right to the jaw as the round ended.

Herman staged another rally in the fourteenth, but Kaplan again staved him off and came back with another strong counter-attack.

Kaplan won twelve of the fifteen rounds. The seventh was even and Herman took the tenth and fourteenth.

The fight kept a crowd of 16,000 on edge, as Herman's rallies always raised the possibility of a knockout. The seventh round was the only dull chapter of the evening.

In the semi-final, Honeyboy Finnegan, Boston featherweight, won from Bobby Garcia, of Baltimore, in the sixth round. Garcia was repeatedly warned against hitting low and was finally disqualified.

GERSHE KAYOED BY EDDIE SHEA

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19.—Saved by the bell in the third round, only to go down for the count of ten in the fourth round, Benny Gershe, Cleveland featherweight, last night received perhaps a decisive setback in his hopes for a chance to fight for the featherweight title. Eddie Shea, his Chicago opponent, had Gershe in trouble from the opening bell.

Maxie Holub of Akron defeated Art Wander, of Buffalo, in the semi-final. He floored his opponent in the fourth for a count of five, and in the seventh and eight rounds had him near a knockout, but was unable to land the decisive punch.

Woman Made Curator of Yale Babylonian Relics

New Haven, Conn.—Faculty appointments at Yale university are featured by the naming of a woman as acting curator of the Yale Babylonian collection, the most complete of its kind in the world. The new curator is Miss Ettalene Mears Grice, who also will be assistant professor of Assyriology and Babylonian literature.

Miss Grice is a graduate of the Western College for Women and took advanced work in Semitics at Bryn Mawr. She obtained her Ph. D. in this department at Yale in 1917 under the late Prof. Albert T. Clay, whose assistant she became. As holder of the Kohut fellowship since 1919 she has been engaged in important Assyriological research.

Upon the death last month of Professor Clay, who was considered the world's leading archeologist. Doctor Grice was promptly considered as his successor. In addition to having charge of the important collection, she will teach elementary Assyrian, lecture on old Babylonian text and conduct the Assyrian seminary.

FIVE NEW MEN BECOME SOLONS ON NEW YEAR'S

Three Old Members Retain Councilmanic Places.

KERR PRESIDENT

Clyde Goodballet is Only Democrat in Assembly.

Five new faces will appear in city council next year, while three old members of the municipal legislative body will hold office for at least another term of two years.

New members include Clyde Goodballet, the only Democrat in the assembly, who will succeed J. R. Chambers as First ward councilman; Edgar Heddleston, who replaces James Larcombe as Second ward member; L. M. Poole, successor to J. B. Rowe; George Hughes, a former member of council, who takes the place of Fred Yardley, and O. J. Herrington, councilman-at-large, who succeeds N. P. Kerr, elected president of council to take the place of L. T. Capehart, who retires.

Thomas Farrall and Charles Hayes are the only present council members who were successful in their campaigns for re-election.

The present council probably will assemble for the last time next Wednesday evening. The next regular session is scheduled for Friday evening, but this being Christmas night the date was set forward.

The new legislators probably will meet Friday, January 8, when organization work will be undertaken. The budget for 1926 will be the first legislative wrestle during 1926.

Sessions during 1926 will be held in the municipal court headquarters on the third floor of the Thompson building, Fourth and Market streets. If council's plans do not miscarry, offices of the city auditor and city treasurer will be moved to the old council chamber on the second floor of the city building in the rooms now occupied by the auditor and treasurer.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" HERE

McManus' Cartoon Hit on Stage at Ceramic.

"Bringing Up Father in Gay New York," the last word in modern musical comedies, is the attraction at the Ceramic theater today. Based on the famous George McManus cartoons, the new offering has been acclaimed one of the best presented in many seasons. A genuine laugh-compelling vehicle, the kind that is certain to perpetuate the popularity of Jiggs, Maggie, Dinty Moore and the rest of the Mahoney clan, whose antics and escapades are daily chronicled in the leading newspapers throughout the United States. This time "Father" comes into his own, but only after he has outwitted Maggie in her mad and temporary successful authority over the worse henpecked husband and "Father" in captivity.

A "Father" show without a bevy of pretty young women forming a champion beauty chorus would not be complete. This year the pulchritude end of the contribution has been described as superior to similar offerings of previous seasons, which means that each succeeding year and this is the tenth witnesses the "best ever." As a rule these promises have been kept and if the new play lives up to advance publicity very few of the patrons of the Ceramic theater will be disappointed.

Eight boat-trains a day leave London for Paris, and a person may get a season ticket between the two capitals.

1 DYING, 1 HURT IN PLANE FALL

10 INJURED WHEN PENNSY TRAIN IS DERAILED

TODAY

Convicted? Of What?
Col. Mitchell for Senator.
If New York Had a Boom.
We Are 100,000 Years Old.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Copyright, 1925.

A court-martial finds Col. Mitchell guilty. Guilty of what? TELLING THE TRUTH, OF COURSE, about a lot of official incompetents, and rendering an important service to his country.

The "conviction" of Col. Mitchell convicts the war department, in the public estimation, not Mitchell.

In this whole performance the public can find one comfort. The political career of Mr. Weeks, formerly secretary of war, is as completely ended as that of a mackerel carefully salted and pressed down at the bottom of the barrel.

Col. Mitchell's career is just beginning. The people will not forget a man of courage, who has refused to join the lickspittle brigade of officers that say whatever they are expected to say, covering the stupidity of superiors that they may be rewarded with promotion.

Mitchell ought now to run for senator on the Democratic ticket in Wisconsin. He would teach a useful lesson to some blind Republicans.

Wisconsin appreciates men of courage and has not forgotten that Col. Mitchell's grandfather, in the early days, was one of the best builders of the great state of Wisconsin.

The main thing is that the people have learned the truth from Mitchell. What he has said about the miserable incompetency of our aircraft has been confirmed by men that understand flying.

The rest of the Mitchell story will be told inside of congress and outside by Mitchell himself.

WELCOME SANTA BUT BEWARE OF FIRE DEMON, IS BRYAN'S PLEA

Fire Chief Urges Fireless and Merry Christmas.

LISTS "DON'TS"

Keep Yuletide, But Keep it Safe, is Admonition.

A plea for a fireless as well as a merry Christmas was made by Fire Chief Thomas Bryan today in his annual warning concerning the many fire hazards which prevail during the Yuletide season.

"There is one visitor who appears during the Yuletide that everyone welcomes," said the fire department head, "and that person is none other than Santa Claus. But don't let the fire demon come in with him. By all means, keep Christmas but keep it safe."

"One of the things a fire chief has to do most often and one of the things he likes to do the least," continued Chief Bryan, "is to keep issuing warnings. No one likes to play the part of a 'kill-joy' no matter how good the reasons—certainly I don't. And so I hope that everybody who reads the few words of caution I've written down about Christmas celebrations will take them in the right spirit and understand that there must be some real cause for alarm or I wouldn't talk like this at such a season.

Don't Use Candles.

"The truth is that Christmas is sometimes turned from a time of good cheer to one of deep sorrow, very suddenly, and all because of fire. Everybody who reads the newspapers remembers the accounts of death and injury and property destruction reported last year on Christmas day and the days immediately following. Almost always such fires are due to somebody's carelessness and, according to figures I have from the National Board of Fire Underwriters, about one in every ten Christmas fires result in loss of life. Certainly nobody wants anything like that to happen in East Liverpool when it can so easily be prevented."

Here are Chief Bryan's "don'ts" and suggestions:

"If you must have a candle in the window on Christmas eve, make it an electric one—that is safe.

"If a Christmas tree is used, make sure that it is securely set up so that it will not topple over, and keep it away from heating and lighting fixtures.

"Use metal tinsel, flake asbestos

One Birdman Sustains Broken Back and Internal Injuries.

"Engine Stopped," One Aviator Tells His Rescuers.

ZANESVILLE, O., Dec. 19.—A government airplane manned by Lieut. James Hewings, of Boston, Mass., and Lieut. Lawrence Stipe, of Saginaw, Mich., crashed into a small woods on the Alex Smith farm, just across the road from Headly inn, five miles west of the city, on the national road, at 11:40 today and both men were badly injured. One of them, Lieut. Stipe, will die.

The two birdmen were brought to a local hospital and a hasty examination revealed that Stipe had sustained a broken back and other internal injuries, while Hewings sustained a broken leg and other injuries, not considered necessarily fatal. Both men are unconscious.

The plane was enroute from Phillips Field, Aberdeen, Md., to McCook Field at Dayton. When rescuers reached the plane one of the men, just before lapsing into unconsciousness, said, "the engine stopped." Sailing down toward the earth it crashed into a tree top in the Smith woods and was completely wrecked.

INDUSTRIALLY, UNITED STATES ENTERS 1926 WITH MOST PROMISING CONDITION IN DECADE, SAYS MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION CHIEFTAIN

By JOHN E. EDGERTON,
President National Association of Manufacturers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Industrially, the United States enters the year 1926 in what I regard as its most promising condition in a decade. But with this optimistic thought I believe the entire business and social nation should exercise the utmost caution and be ever alive to its justification to keep the country in the lead of the world. Prosperity has its perils far greater than adversity and a nation is in its most critical stage when it enjoys its greatest opulence.

We have toiled hard to build a great country—we will have to toil harder to keep it a great country. Only by synchronized industry can we continue our industrial nation as it is functioning today giving the greatest happiness to man and management and maintaining the highest employment standards in the world.

Looking at Europe, we see a strong tendency toward world recovery. Eleven foreign debt settlements have been drawn up, a number of inter-allied debt funding arrangements have been made, a dozen nations have returned to the gold standard, as many smaller nations have reorganized their currency systems, and the Locarno agreement promises numerous aids to world stabilization. Many European countries are applying our machine production methods, developing long idle resources, borrowing enormous capital to reach out into the competitive domestic and foreign markets, becoming more Democratic and widening the fields of opportunity for their masses rather than their classes.

Healthy Condition.

All of these things may be translated easily into a challenge to this nation—into warning that Europe, back again at work, will be a stronger competitor than she ever has been before. That calls for greater application, greater energy, greater organization of our industry than ever.

In our own country there is not a cloud on the industrial horizon that betokens anything more than a seasonal shower. The stability, solidity and sane contentment of our industry nad our public are shown in the existing anthracite coal strike which, while in effect four mounths, has caused only the slightest ripple of apprehension—and this strike affects the public far more than it does industry.

A survey of the whole country made by our association two months ago revealed a healthy condition with excellent forecast for the winter and early part of the year. Production and sales quantities had increased over the previous year. Values and wages had increased. Production and consumption were nearer to a level with more even buying. Unemployment and labor dissensions had been reduced also to zero. The same situation exists today, or, if there has been a change it has been for the better. Our whole country is in a most enviable position. It is our duty to keep it so.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Return to normal conditions in the country's building program is indicated in an exhaustive survey of building conditions in 70 cities and districts of the country made public today by G. L. Miller and Company. The survey was made with the co-operation of the Associated General Contractors and the National Council of Building Trade Employers.

The situation at the end of this year was thus summarized:

Fifty-two cities and five districts reported the outlook for another big building year.

Eight cities predicted new high building record during the next twelve months.

Thirteen cities and two districts reported definitely the possibility of slump construction.

Thirty-one cities are temporarily caught up with apartment house and home building requirements.

Twenty-two cities reported important industrial and commercial building programs.

Three cities have shortage in housing facilities.

Ten reported deficit in public and industrial buildings.

Few of the larger cities expect any material decline in building activities, according to the Miller survey. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Detroit and other large cities expect another big construction year, equalling if not exceeding the 1925 volume. Cincinnati, Kansas City and Minneapolis were the largest of the small number of cities expecting a slump, few of which anticipated any serious depression.

Practically all of the larger cities such as Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Boston, St. Louis, have caught up, temporarily at least, on apartment house and home accommodations. Only three cities, Tampa and Miami, Fla., and Salt Lake City, Utah, reported any material housing shortage.

More than a score of cities reported that they were undertaking huge normal building programs in an effort to keep pace with their rapid growth.

10 INJURED WHEN PENNSY TRAIN IS DERAILED

Convicted? Of What?

Col. Mitchell for Senator.

If New York Had a Boom.

We Are 100,000 Years Old.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Copyright, 1925.

A court-martial finds Col. Mitchell guilty. Guilty of what? TELLING THE TRUTH, OF COURSE, about a lot of official incompetents, and rendering an important service to his country.

The "conviction" of Col. Mitchell convicts the war department, in the public estimation, not Mitchell.

In this whole performance the public can find one comfort. The political career of Mr. Weeks, formerly secretary of war, is as completely ended as that of a mackerel carefully salted and pressed down at the bottom of the barrel.

Col. Mitchell's career is just beginning. The people will not forget a man of courage, who has refused to join the lickspittle brigade of officers that say whatever they are expected to say, covering the stupidity of superiors that they may be rewarded with promotion.

Mitchell ought now to run for senator on the Democratic ticket in Wisconsin. He would teach a useful lesson to some blind Republicans.

Wisconsin appreciates men of courage and has not forgotten that Col. Mitchell's grandfather, in the early days, was one of the best builders of the great state of Wisconsin.

The main thing is that the people have learned the truth from Mitchell. What he has said about the miserable incompetency of our aircraft has been confirmed by men that understanding.

The rest of the Mitchell story will be told inside of congress and outside by Mitchell himself.

Looking at Europe, we see a strong tendency toward world recovery. Eleven foreign debt settlements have been drawn up, a number of inter-allied debt funding arrangements have been made, a dozen nations have returned to the gold standard, as many smaller nations have reorganized their currency systems, and the Locarno agreement promises numerous aids to world stabilization. Many European countries are applying our machine production methods, developing long idle resources, borrowing enormous capital to reach out into the competitive domestic and foreign markets, becoming more Democratic and widening the fields of opportunity for their masses rather than their classes.

Healthy Condition.

All of these things may be translated easily into a challenge to this nation—into warning that Europe, back again at work, will be a stronger competitor than she ever has been before. That calls for greater application, greater energy, greater organization of our industry than ever.

In our own country there is not a cloud on the industrial horizon that betokens anything more than a seasonal shower. The stability, solidity and sane contentment of our industry and our public are shown in the existing anthracite coal strike which, while in effect four mounths, has caused only the slightest ripple of apprehension—and this strike affects the public far more than it does industry.

A survey of the whole country made by our association two months ago revealed a healthy condition with excellent forecast for the winter and early part of the year. Production and sales quantities had increased over the previous year. Values and wages had increased. Production and consumption were nearer to a level with more even buying. Unemployment and labor dissensions had been reduced also to zero. The same situation exists today, or, if there has been a change it has been for the better. Our whole country is in a most enviable position. It is our duty to keep it so.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Return to normal conditions in the country's building program is indicated in an exhaustive survey of building conditions in 70 cities and districts of the country made public today by G. L. Miller and Company. The survey was made with the co-operation of the Associated General Contractors and the National Council of Building Trade Employers.

The situation at the end of this year was thus summarized:

Fifty-two cities and five districts reported the outlook for another big building year.

Eight cities predicted new high building record during the next twelve months.

Thirteen cities and two districts reported definitely the possibility of slump construction.

Thirty-one cities are temporarily caught up with apartment house and home building requirements.

Twenty-two cities reported important industrial and commercial building programs.

Three cities have shortage in housing facilities.

Ten reported deficit in public and industrial buildings.

Few of the larger cities expect any material decline in building activities, according to the Miller survey. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Detroit and other large cities expect another big construction year, equalling if not exceeding the 1925 volume. Cincinnati, Kansas City and Minneapolis were the largest of the small number of cities expecting a slump, few of which anticipated any serious depression.

Practically all of the larger cities such as Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Boston, St. Louis, have caught up, temporarily at least, on apartment house and home accommodations. Only three cities, Tampa and Miami, Fla., and Salt Lake City, Utah, reported any material housing shortage.

More than a score of cities reported that they were undertaking huge normal building programs in an effort to keep pace with their rapid growth.

TWENTY-EIGHT.

Harry Yancey went with Noble to the station. They were going to make the trip together, it appeared. Laurel supposed Noble needed Harry as a legal adviser.

"I'll keep an eye on him for you." Harry laughed, as the two prepared to leave Harwood house. "He's a gay, old bird."

Laurel affected a smile. She wished that Harry Yancey had gone to the station directly and allowed her to be alone with Noble. She disliked to parade her affections. The feeling in the parting kiss she gave Noble was suppressed.

"You must write me every day—or several times a day," she murmured.

"I will," he promised, appearing anxious to go. Laurel stood at the door and watched the car disappear down the driveway. There had been something ominous in Harry Yancey's laughing remark. Could she trust Noble? A cutting nocturnal breeze struck her and sent her back into the house, shivering.

"Is madam going out?" Louis asked respectfully.

"No." She walked into her library, feeling bereft. The oak-paneled walls of the room, reflecting moodily the glow of the fireplace, depressed her. She flooded the place with lights and sat down before the blaze, seeking warmth and consolation. There, a quarter of an hour late, Marion found her.

"Has Daddy gone?"

"Yes. . . . . You knew, Marion, that he was going away this evening."

Her step-dauther was not affected by the rebuke. "I thought he'd go on a later train. . . . I just got back from the country club. . . . I'll send him a telegram with my love. He's going to New York, isn't he?"

"No, Chicago and Detroit." She was annoyed by Marion's questions, because she resented her step-daughter's neglect of Noble. Laurel was sure that her husband was hurt by his daughter's new indifference to him.

Marion sat down and gazed into the fire. It was evident here was something on her mind. Soon she turned to her step-mother and spoke: "Say, I'm going to give a party here. Tomorrow night. We can dance and have buffet supper. You can be the chaperon."

Laurel's eyes flashed. "Did you speak to your father about it?"

"Oh, he won't mind. . . . There'll be just ten or twelve."

The other woman turned away to conceal the resentment in her flushed face, Marion might at least have asked her approval. . . .

"I may not be here," she lied. "I had planned to go out."

"Oh, all right."

Marion's careless response made Laurel's cheeks burn all the more. With effort she kept her voice calm. "Perhaps you can get your aunt to chaperon the party."

"Aw, say! She's too stiff-necked."

"There should be some one." She still wondered at the roughness of her step-daughter. All of the money Noble has spent upon his daughter's education seemed to have been wasted.

"Well, you'll be coming back later in the evening, won't you?"

"Yes. . . . yes." She was thinking that now she would have to go out whether she wanted to or not. "I suppose you have told Louis to prepare for the guests," she went on.

Marion responded with a nod. "I'm going to bed. If anybody calls me, I'm out and under." She arose.

Something impelled Laurel to smile up at her. "You aren't looking very well. You need a rest. Hadn't you better loaf for several days and recuperate? You can postpone the party."

"Oh, I'm all right. I can't put off the party now—I've already asked everybody."

Laurel frowned again. It occurred to her that Marion deliberately planned to take advantage of her father's absence from the city.

"Night." Marion strode out of the room, a young animal more like a male than a female. To Laurel, the ultra-feminine, Marion was a sexless creature, coarse, dismaying. She thought of herself as belonging to another generation. The 11 months difference in their ages seemed more like 11 years.

Laurel tried to interest herself in a book, but the dilemma suddenly thrust upon her weighed upon her mind. If anything untoward happened at the party, Noble would blame her; and he probably would blame her anyway for "permitting" it. And any effort she made to keep her step-daughter within bounds would only widen the breach between them. . . . She felt very lonely.

NEW ENGLAND "SPUD" PRICES CAUSE BOYCOTT

Housewives Refuse to Buy or Serve Potatoes.

90 CENTS A PECK

Farmers Happy as They Receive $6 a Barrel.

BOSTON — New England housewives are up in arms. Potatoes are retailing from 75 to 90 cents a peck.

"Spuds will sell for $10 a bag—the price during the World war," predicts a leading Boston dealer.

Short crop, gamblers and speculators—all are blamed for the price boost.

Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Massachusetts Necessaries of Life Commission, has launched an investigation.

And meanwhile, the housewives have boycotted the "spud," refusing to serve it on their tables so great is their anger.

Railroad Yards Clogged.

In face of the advance in price of potatoes, the railroad yards are clogged with potato-laden cars. The railroad potato houses are filled to the roof with the lowly vegetable. The Boston and Maine railroad declared an embargo on potatoes. A rush to reach the market is the answer.

Down in the Aroostook, Maine, potato belt, where is raised ten per cent of the entire crop of the United States, the farmers are indignant. "We are not to blame for high prices," says the farmers. The wholesaler and retailer, assert the farmers, must explain why potatoes that cost on an average of 55 cents a peck delivered in Boston sell at the excessive price of 90 cents per peck.

Aroostook has been through two lean years. Many of her farms are mortgaged to the roof. Many of her fertilizer bills remain unpaid. Outside banks have loaned her farmers money to carry on. A small crop was planted this year. It was a necessity. The Aroostook farmer was unable to stand a heavy load. Then came the early snow. Some potatoes could not be harvested.

Boon To Farmers.

All this was a God-send to the potato farmer. Last year he got $1 a barrel for his "spuds." Today he is receiving $6 a barrel.

In 1919, a short crop year, Aroostook farmers got $10 a barrel for their potatoes. And it looks as if the $10 mark was going to be touched this year. All of which is great news for the farmer, the banker who loaned the farmer money, the country storeman who has carried the farmer's accounts, the fertilizer companies, etc.

But the New England housewife. Already the boycott has halted the price advance.

Where will the circle end, asks the economist. And the answer will not be known until next spring.

Walnuts shipped from Rumania to this country in six months of 1925 were valued at $42,000 more than all those sent in 1925.

Rice Methods Studied.

TOKYO.—There is no likelihood of the United States becoming a competitor of Japan in the growing of rice, according to J. W. Jones, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who has spent several months in Japan making a study of methods of rise culture.

"There should be some one." She still wondered at the roughness of her step-daughter. All of the money Noble has spent upon his daughter's education seemed to have been wasted.

"Well, you'll be coming back later in the evening, won't you?"

"Yes. . . . yes." She was thinking that now she would have to go out whether she wanted to or not. "I suppose you have told Louis to prepare for the guests," she went on.

Marion responded with a nod. "I'm going to bed. If anybody calls me, I'm out and under." She arose.

Something impelled Laurel to smile up at her. "You aren't looking very well. You need a rest. Hadn't you better loaf for several days and recuperate? You can postpone the party."

"Oh, I'm all right. I can't put off the party now—I've already asked everybody."

Laurel frowned again. It occurred to her that Marion deliberately planned to take advantage of her father's absence from the city.

"Night." Marion strode out of the room, a young animal more like a male than a female. To Laurel, the ultra-feminine, Marion was a sexless creature, coarse, dismaying. She thought of herself as belonging to another generation. The 11 months difference in their ages seemed more like 11 years.

Laurel tried to interest herself in a book, but the dilemma suddenly thrust upon her weighed upon her mind. If anything untoward happened at the party, Noble would blame her; and he probably would blame her anyway for "permitting" it. And any effort she made to keep her step-daughter within bounds would only widen the breach between them. . . . She felt very lonely.

NEW ENGLAND "SPUD" PRICES CAUSE BOYCOTT

Housewives Refuse to Buy or Serve Potatoes.

90 CENTS A PECK

Farmers Happy as They Receive $6 a Barrel.

BOSTON — New England housewives are up in arms. Potatoes are retailing from 75 to 90 cents a peck.

"Spuds will sell for $10 a bag—the price during the World war," predicts a leading Boston dealer.

Short crop, gamblers and speculators—all are blamed for the price boost.

Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Massachusetts Necessaries of Life Commission, has launched an investigation.

And meanwhile, the housewives have boycotted the "spud," refusing to serve it on their tables so great is their anger.

Railroad Yards Clogged.

In face of the advance in price of potatoes, the railroad yards are clogged with potato-laden cars. The railroad potato houses are filled to the roof with the lowly vegetable. The Boston and Maine railroad declared an embargo on potatoes. A rush to reach the market is the answer.

Down in the Aroostook, Maine, potato belt, where is raised ten per cent of the entire crop of the United States, the farmers are indignant. "We are not to blame for high prices," says the farmers. The wholesaler and retailer, assert the farmers, must explain why potatoes that cost on an average of 55 cents a peck delivered in Boston sell at the excessive price of 90 cents per peck.

Aroostook has been through two lean years. Many of her farms are mortgaged to the roof. Many of her fertilizer bills remain unpaid. Outside banks have loaned her farmers money to carry on. A small crop was planted this year. It was a necessity. The Aroostook farmer was unable to stand a heavy load. Then came the early snow. Some potatoes could not be harvested.

Boon To Farmers.

All this was a God-send to the potato farmer. Last year he got $1 a barrel for his "spuds." Today he is receiving $6 a barrel.

In 1919, a short crop year, Aroostook farmers got $10 a barrel for their potatoes. And it looks as if the $10 mark was going to be touched this year. All of which is great news for the farmer, the banker who loaned the farmer money, the country storeman who has carried the farmer's accounts, the fertilizer companies, etc.

But the New England housewife. Already the boycott has halted the price advance.

Where will the circle end, asks the economist. And the answer will not be known until next spring.

Walnuts shipped from Rumania to this country in six months of 1925 were valued at $42,000 more than all those sent in 1925.

Rice Methods Studied.

TOKYO.—There is no likelihood of the United States becoming a competitor of Japan in the growing of rice, according to J. W. Jones, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who has spent several months in Japan making a study of methods of rise culture.

Records of the rainfall in the British Isles are now taken at some 5,009 different places.

Good Luck Day In Seal Campaign

Today is Good Luck Day in East Liverpool's Christmas health seal campaign.

Club women and high school girls, seeking to attain the $2,200 goal in the 1925 fight against tuberculosis, are mingling among pedestrians, appealing to them to purchase one seal and pay any amount they desire. In other words, as Mrs. Louis Steinfeld, chairman of the health committee of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, points out, today's sale is a "thank offering" in the warfare against the white plague.

"Think you are lucky to be the purchaser instead of the patient," is the slogan in the one-day canvass which is expected to close the campaign which has as its main object, in addition to providing means of sanatorium treatment for tuberculosis sufferers, the employment of a public health nurse in East Liverpool.

With approximately $274 needed to raise the $2,200 quota fixed for the city—a per capita of 10 cents—Good Luck Day workers on the streets, in theaters, business houses and the postoffice lobby are busy.

If you have not purchased health seals, do so today.

The Christmas Boom

From the Toronto Globe one learns that Canada has gone in for a bigger and better Christmas. Merchants in many different lines agree that for the first time in five years the public is really enjoying spending its money. Last year the shoppers' slogan was "Have you nothing cheaper?" This year it is, "Have you nothing better?"

The same thing has been noted in all parts of the United States. People have money to spend and they are spending it. Incidentally they are spending it on the whole rather wisely. They are looking for suitability and excellence in their Christmas gifts, in everything from children's toys to useful articles for grown-ups. A book reviewer recently commented on the report from publishers and book sellers that the "gift book" which was mostly for show and very little for reading and thoughtful enjoyment has practically lost favor. Book-buyers seem to be also book-lovers and they are therefore choosing books for their contents instead of their covers.

Right now, of course, Christmas things are leading in purchases. But the good tendencies observable in December are likely to hold over in 1926 in a continued season of cheerful and useful buying. Prosperity is the basis of the Christmas boom, and it will be the basis of the better furnishing of homes and the improvement of other living conditions.

The Deserving Fiddler

The country will owe a debt of gratitude to "Granpa Mellie" Dunbar, of Maine, aged 72, for his timely and wholesome contributions to American music and dancing.

This old gentleman bears the double distinction of being a first-class snowshoe maker and a first-class fiddler of a type now almost extinct.

Henry Ford, who is also deserving of gratitude in this connection, brought "Mellie" from the Maine woods to Detroit to help along Henry's revival of old-fashioned dances. The fiddler remained until Ford's orchestra had mastered the sweet old tunes and Ford's musical mechanics had assembled them in a book that is soon to be published. He would take nothing more from Ford than his regular "three dollars a night" for his playing.

Now the fiddler has gone to New York, announcing frankly that he intends to cash in on his sudden fame.

"Me and Ma have had honor enough," he says. "What we want now is enough money to see us through."

They deserve it, and will probably get it. The fiddler, as well as the laborer, is worthy of his hire.

Perfume, Smoke, Education

The headline: "Perfume, Smoke and Public Schools," may inspire the hasty reader to exclaim, "Oh, these terrible young people! Whatever are they coming to!"

But the headline really refers to the shortcomings of the elders instead of the indulgence of the youngsters.

It captioned an editorial in the October issue of The American Educational Digest. The editorial commented on the already much-heralded fact that this country spends almost twice as much on tobacco as on public school instruction and that the cost of cosmetics, perfumes and soft drinks also far exceed the expenditure for education.

It seems to be generally conceded that something is slightly amiss with our educational system and that the children themselves are furnishing some difficult problems.

Perhaps part of the trouble lies in the disproportionate expenditures for passing things and for education. And part may lie in the adult state of mind which resents increasing the school expenditure.

The Detroit News wants to know how they make change in Armenia, where eggs pass for money. Well, how do we break a dollar?

World peace seems to be mostly a matter of equipping diplomacy with snubbers, balloon tires and four-wheel brakes.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—The lengthening of Second avenue is to end the existence of a famous institution—the National Winter Garden Burlesque on East Houston street. For many years it has tickled the amusement palate of the East Side with old time burlesque.

It is sponsored by the Minsky Brothers who have rolled up a fortune doling out slap-stick laughs. One thing may be said for the National Winter Garden—it is different. One reads a placard over the box office: "A nominal charge will be made on all passes."

An on the front curtain is scrolled: "The show's the thing—Will Shakespeare." The theatre is five floors up and you ascend in an elevator but you descend down fire escapes. It costs money to keep an elevator runner on at nights.

A patron may yell, whistle and stamp his feet but if he essays a bit of wisecracking he receives what Second avenue calls "a rap on the conk." The house policemen are hard guys who are imprevious to sympathy. When they swat they swat.

Everybody smokes and between acts they sell charlotte russes, heaven knows why. The actresses wear pink tights. "So it looks like their skin, Boob" an usher said. If a lady stoops over—whack, goes the whang stick deftly weilded by a red nosed comic with splay feet.

It is hilarious commonness and some of the jokes need formaldehyde but everybody has a good time. It is about the last stand of the quip that ends in a resounding whack over the head with a pig-bladder. Ladies are listed on the program as Miss I. Gettem, Miss Holdem Yale and Miss Bee Yourself.

Sprinkled among the audience are uptown "bloods" who regard a trip to the National Winter Garden as a bit of slumming. Any attempt to leave until the performance ends is met with the ignominy of swift hisses. The East Side is jealous of its artists.

Morningside reveals the domestic side of Columbia college. It is where teachers and students live. A peaceful area that gives a view of Harlem roof flapping with wet wash. Spinster teachers live there with widowed mothers. The atmosphere is intellectual. There are few lighted windows after 10 o'clock. The district is dotted with clean, low priced restaurants.

In the old Chinete theatre in Doyers street in Chinatown gospel services are held at 10 o'clock nightly. A welcome sign reads: "Drunkards, drug adicts and the homeless and friendless are welcome." Thomas J. Noonan, the superintendent, a ruddy cheeked man, greets them. It was to one of these services that "The Swamp Lily," so named because she came from the damp cellars where only the human fungi grows, drifted one night. Shortly before her Chinese husband had been killed in a tong war and her world collapsed. She was converted and spent years reclaiming sinners. Now and then a forlorn soul is salvaged out of the turbulent currents. The benches are mostly filled with blurry eyed wrecks but none are considered hopeless for salvation. Over the rostrum hangs a painting of "Sophie the Scrubwoman" once a gin drinking hag who died a saintly white haired woman who consecrated her last years to comforting the forlorn.

A man who had made his mark and deserted everything for war service toiled paintfully over West 53rd street. One hand was off at the wrist and his left leg was cork. In the thickening shadows a typical New York street loafer sat on the running board of an idle taxi talking to a driver. "What's the dope you, carrying a cane?" inquired the loafer impertinently. A burst ear drum made it necessary for the war relic to have the question repeated. "I am forced to carry a cane. I was foolish enough to aid in making the world safe for such ruffians as you" was what he thought. He said nothing.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The New Congress Convenes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19.—Sunday it was not, and Monday it was, and it acted something like an electric shock. Sunday was merely the calm, on Monday came the electric storm.

It flashed through the streets of Washington and the populace stirred. It contacted with the homes, theatres, offices, and the inhabitants jerked with new energy. It penetrated the hives of the government departments and they buzzed with new zest. It burned through the crowds on F street and Pennsylvania avenue and quickened the click of heels. It sputtered around the positive pole of the White House and struck, creating an explosion in the form of a presidential speech that set the full machinery of the United States government in motion. It packed quite a kick, in fact. The Sixty-ninth Congress had convened.

Atop the American Olympus, in the great building astride Capitol Hill, the political gods of the United States sit in more or less solemn conclave. Amid great salvos of oratorical thunder they convened, December 7, when several hundred legislative Joves gathered at high noon, after the precedent long since set, and, responding to the rap of the gavel, assumed an attitude that bore some resemblance to order.

Their lightning was seen in every civilized land, and the presidential explosion it caused when it struck was heard 'round the world. It was not merely the Sixty-ninth Congress that was convening; it was the United States Congress.

But, unlike their mythical prototypes of Hellenic lore, their concourse was exposed to mortal eyes. Legislative immortals though they are, the noblesse of the dignified profession of American lawgiving, their meeting was witnessed by the multitude, plebeian and patrician alike. And all those who could, jammed their way into the aisles and seats, even to the doorways of the Congressional galleries. And those that were not near enough to make their pilgrimage to the gathering, heard the rumbling thunder of their respective Joves through the columns of the press.

From the mansions and hovels of Washington, from the embassies and legations, came the audience. Effete Washington, surfeited thought it is with excellencies and honorables, always enthuses over Congress. From Chevy Chase to Four and a Half street, the natives are electrified by the gathering of the gods. It is a convention that Washington does not have to fight for with other cities, and it has been convening for more than a century, but its charm is always potent, and its satellites in the capital are as numerous as ever.

A Splendid Spectacle.

Its opening the other day was a great spectacle. The galleries were laden to the point where they looked as if the addition of the camel's last straw would precipitate the mass of watching humanity upon the gathering below. And, although the convening of both houses was compelling, the House claimed the longer share of interest the first day.

Here there was a speaker to be elected. Here there were rules to be snarled over and there there was to be contested the challenge that the Democratic - Insurgent forces had thrown into the face of the Republicans.

While Clerk William Tyler Page droned the roll call, the constituent charmers proceeded to do their familiar act for the House galleries. They chattered and chortled, saluted and smiled, and the staccato of back-slapping beat a genial rhythm to the general conversational symphony. The voice of the clerk could scarcely be heard above the racket, and his articulation was lost in the storm of voices that swept the chamber. His frequent hammerings brought little response from the greeters, and, once shown the way, the chattering galleries refused to comply with the order-commanding gavel. But, as if they were adept lip readers, the members let him know that they were present, and that seemed to satisf yhim.

Everything was excitement, but above the clerk's head, and later above Speaker Longworth, there sat, and sits at every session of the House, a granite-faced group, glowering at the maelstrom below and around them, like so many owls on a limb. The numerous rounds of applause elicited no quiver of emotion from them. Their inscrutable countenances were broken only by sardonic smiles. They even looked bored at times. For it was the old familiar song and dance to them—they were newspaper men.

But, when the House elected the speaker and the enthusiastic multitude acclaimed Longworth in his procession to the chair, a novice in the press gallery disclosed that he was thoroughly excited. His outburst was cut off like a displeasing radio performance, when some seore of scribes threw him a look that might have meant anything, but which really did mean, "Act your age, stupid!"

One Who Respected the Gavel.

There was one there who respected the pounding gavel. She gazed at him from her gallery seat and the gaze was one of complacency. She surveyed the House through her lorgnette, and perhaps there flashed memories into her mind of other sessions some two decades ago, when her dynamic father sat in the White House. And the memory of her in those days is vivid in the minds of Washingtonians and to some of the veterans of the chamber of which her husband is now speaker. For it was Alice Longworth, the Princess Alice of Roosevelt's days in the White House.

Over in the Senate the next day, the hoary-headed statesmen were warming up for the coming battles. Strangely clashing with the usual aged appearance of the senior chamber were the youthful physiognomies of Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Harreld of Oklahoma. These two young men, both in their early thirties, are the youngest members the senate has had in half a century. But youth seems to be conducive to success in the senate. Henry Clay was only 29 when he took the oath. No challenge of his eligibility was made, although the constitution provides that no senator shall be under 30.

To show that his withering satire and polemic propensities are as brilliant as ever, Senator Reed of Missouri engaged Senator Moses in a bit of repartee, which set the senate and the galleries laughing. Senator Swanson and Senator Norris joined the Missouri senator and the debate was enlivened by sharp invective, coated with oratorical unguents.

But the biggest act came when the senators began the introduction of bills. Perhaps they remember an incident of March 4 last, when a man named Dawes took them to task about the little matter of senatorial rules. At any rate, when the bill introduction got under way the entire personnel was on its feet demanding recognition.

Mr. Dawes was obviously bewildered. He looked from one to the other, while the demands for recognition were hurled at him. The senators were laughing, for they were enjoying their little joke. And Mr. Dawes' predicament was becoming embarrassing. He asked the states of some of the senators and the clerk told him. But finally, with a determined attitude, born of desperation, he began at the extreme right of the Democratic side and went around to the extreme left of the Republican side, taking the senators in their seating order, as the order in which they asked recognition was impossible to determine.

The Sixty-ninth Congress convened with a huge stack of bills before it, with the naval muddle and the aircraft mess up to it, and, with the eyes of the world upon it.

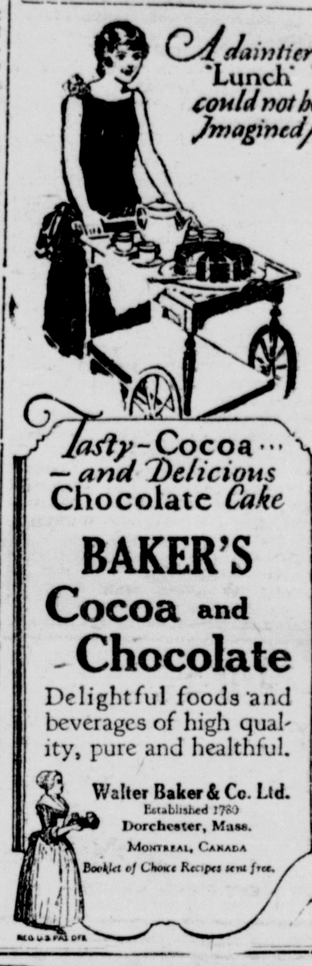

But the most interested of all are the Washingtonians. Washington now moves faster, is gayer, in short, is now completely itself. A part of Washington is missing with Congress out of session. But now Washington is all that it should be. The gods are present.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—The lengthening of Second avenue is to end the existence of a famous institution—the National Winter Garden Burlesque on East Houston street. For many years it has tickled the amusement palate of the East Side with old time burlesque.

It is sponsored by the Minsky Brothers who have rolled up a fortune doling out slap-stick laughs. One thing may be said for the National Winter Garden—it is different. One reads a placard over the box office: "A nominal charge will be made on all passes."

An on the front curtain is scrolled: "The show's the thing—Will Shakespeare." The theatre is five floors up and you ascend in an elevator but you descend down fire escapes. It costs money to keep an elevator runner on at nights.

A patron may yell, whistle and stamp his feet but if he essays a bit of wisecracking he receives what Second avenue calls "a rap on the conk." The house policemen are hard guys who are imprevious to sympathy. When they swat they swat.

Everybody smokes and between acts they sell charlotte russes, heaven knows why. The actresses wear pink tights. "So it looks like their skin, Boob" an usher said. If a lady stoops over—whack, goes the whang stick deftly weilded by a red nosed comic with splay feet.

It is hilarious commonness and some of the jokes need formaldehyde but everybody has a good time. It is about the last stand of the quip that ends in a resounding whack over the head with a pig-bladder. Ladies are listed on the program as Miss I. Gettem, Miss Holdem Yale and Miss Bee Yourself.

Sprinkled among the audience are uptown "bloods" who regard a trip to the National Winter Garden as a bit of slumming. Any attempt to leave until the performance ends is met with the ignominy of swift hisses. The East Side is jealous of its artists.

Morningside reveals the domestic side of Columbia college. It is where teachers and students live. A peaceful area that gives a view of Harlem roof flapping with wet wash. Spinster teachers live there with widowed mothers. The atmosphere is intellectual. There are few lighted windows after 10 o'clock. The district is dotted with clean, low priced restaurants.

In the old Chinete theatre in Doyers street in Chinatown gospel services are held at 10 o'clock nightly. A welcome sign reads: "Drunkards, drug adicts and the homeless and friendless are welcome." Thomas J. Noonan, the superintendent, a ruddy cheeked man, greets them. It was to one of these services that "The Swamp Lily," so named because she came from the damp cellars where only the human fungi grows, drifted one night. Shortly before her Chinese husband had been killed in a tong war and her world collapsed. She was converted and spent years reclaiming sinners. Now and then a forlorn soul is salvaged out of the turbulent currents. The benches are mostly filled with blurry eyed wrecks but none are considered hopeless for salvation. Over the rostrum hangs a painting of "Sophie the Scrubwoman" once a gin drinking hag who died a saintly white haired woman who consecrated her last years to comforting the forlorn.

A man who had made his mark and deserted everything for war service toiled paintfully over West 53rd street. One hand was off at the wrist and his left leg was cork. In the thickening shadows a typical New York street loafer sat on the running board of an idle taxi talking to a driver. "What's the dope you, carrying a cane?" inquired the loafer impertinently. A burst ear drum made it necessary for the war relic to have the question repeated. "I am forced to carry a cane. I was foolish enough to aid in making the world safe for such ruffians as you" was what he thought. He said nothing.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

The New Congress Convenes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19—Sunday it was not, and Monday it was, and it acted something like an electric shock. Sunday was merely the calm, on Monday came the electric storm.

It flashed through the streets of Washington and the populace stirred. It contacted with the homes, theatres, offices, and the inhabitants jerked with new energy. It penetrated the hives of the government departments and they buzzed with new zest. It burned through the crowds on F street and Pennsylvania avenue and quickened the click of heels. It sputtered around the positive pole of the White House and struck, creating an explosion in the form of a presidential speech that set the full machinery of the United States government in motion. It packed quite a kick, in fact. The Sixty-ninth Congress had convened.

Atop the American Olympus, in the great building astride Capitol Hill, the political gods of the United States sit in more or less solemn conclave. Amid great salvos of oratorical thunder they convened, December 7, when several hundred legislative Joves gathered at high noon, after the precedent long since set, and, responding to the rap of the gavel, assumed an attitude that bore some resemblance to order.

Their lightning was seen in every civilized land, and the presidential explosion it caused when it struck was heard 'round the world. It was not merely the Sixty-ninth Congress that was convening; it was the United States Congress.

But, unlike their mythical prototypes of Hellenic lore, their concourse was exposed to mortal eyes. Legislative immortals though they are, the noblesse of the dignified profession of American lawgiving, their meeting was witnessed by the multitude, plebeian and patrician alike. And all those who could, jammed their way into the aisles and seats, even to the doorways of the Congressional galleries. And those that were not near enough to make their pilgrimage to the gathering, heard the rumbling thunder of their respective Joves through the columns of the press.

From the mansions and hovels of Washington, from the embassies and legations, came the audience. Effete Washington, surfeited thought it is with excellencies and honorables, always enthuses over Congress. From Chevy Chase to Four and a Half street, the natives are electrified by the gathering of the gods. It is a convention that Washington does not have to fight for with other cities, and it has been convening for more than a century, but its charm is always potent, and its satellites in the capital are as numerous as ever.

A Splendid Spectacle.

Its opening the other day was a great spectacle. The galleries were laden to the point where they looked as if the addition of the camel's last straw would precipitate the mass of watching humanity upon the gathering below. And, although the convening of both houses was compelling, the House claimed the longer share of interest the first day.

Here there was a speaker to be elected. Here there were rules to be snarled over and there there was to be contested the challenge that the Democratic - Insurgent forces had thrown into the face of the Republicans.

While Clerk William Tyler Page droned the roll call, the constituent charmers proceeded to do their familiar act for the House galleries. They chattered and chortled, saluted and smiled, and the staccato of backslapping beat a genial rhythm to the general conversational symphony. The voice of the clerk could scarcely be heard above the racket, and his articulation was lost in the storm of voices that swept the chamber. His frequent hammerings brought little response from the greeters, and, once shown the way, the chattering galleries refused to comply with the order-commanding gavel. But, as if they were adept lip readers, the members let him know that they were present, and that seemed to satisf yhim.

Everything was excitement, but above the clerk's head, and later above Speaker Longworth, there sat, and sits at every session of the House, a granite-faced group, glowering at the maelstrom below and around them, like so many owls on a limb. The numerous rounds of applause elicited no quiver of emotion from them. Their inscrutable countenances were broken only by sardonic smiles. They even looked bored at times. For it was the old familiar song and dance to them—they were newspaper men.

But, when the House elected the speaker and the enthusiastic multitude acclaimed Longworth in his procession to the chair, a novice in the press gallery disclosed that he was thoroughly excited. His outburst was cut off like a displeasing radio performance, when some seore of scribes threw him a look that might have meant anything, but which really did mean, "Act your age, stupid!"

One Who Respected the Gavel.

There was one there who respected the pounding gavel. She gazed at him from her gallery seat and the gaze was one of complacency. She surveyed the House through her lorgnette, and perhaps there flashed memories into her mind of other sessions some two decades ago, when her dynamic father sat in the White House. And the memory of her in those days is vivid in the minds of Washingtonians and to some of the veterans of the chamber of which her husband is now speaker. For it was Alice Longworth, the Princess Alice of Roosevelt's days in the White House.

Over in the Senate the next day, the hoary-headed statesmen were warming up for the coming battles. Strangely clashing with the usual aged appearance of the senior chamber were the youthful physiognomies of Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Harreld of Oklahoma. These two young men, both in their early thirties, are the youngest members the senate has had in half a century. But youth seems to be conducive to success in the senate. Henry Clay was only 29 when he took the oath. No challenge of his eligibility was made, although the constitution provides that no senator shall be under 30.

To show that his withering satire and polemic propensities are as brilliant as ever, Senator Reed of Missouri engaged Senator Moses in a bit of repartee, which set the senate and the galleries laughing. Senator Swanson and Senator Norris joined the Missouri senator and the debate was enlivened by sharp invective, coated with oratorical unguents.

But the biggest act came when the senators began the introduction of bills. Perhaps they remember an incident of March 4 last, when a man named Dawes took them to task about the little matter of senatorial rules. At any rate, when the bill introduction got under way the entire personnel was on its feet demanding recognition.

Mr. Dawes was obviously bewildered. He looked from one to the other, while the demands for recognition were hurled at him. The senators were laughing, for they were enjoying their little joke. And Mr. Dawes' predicament was becoming embarrassing. He asked the states of some of the senators and the clerk told him. But finally, with a determined attitude, born of desperation, he began at the extreme right of the Democratic side and went around to the extreme left of the Republican side, taking the senators in their seating order, as the order in which they asked recognition was impossible to determine.

The Sixty-ninth Congress convened with a huge stack of bills before it, with the naval muddle and the aircraft mess up to it, and, with the eyes of the world upon it.

But the most interested of all are the Washingtonians. Washington now moves faster, is gayer, in short, is now completely itself. A part of Washington is missing with Congress out of session. But now Washington is all that it should be. The gods are present.

RULE AGAINST LIBRARY USE AS COURTROOM

Carnegie Corporation Says it Would be Breach of Faith.

LETTER TO MAYOR

Attention Directed to Proposal by Clippings From Newspaper.

Use the second floor of the Carnegie library for the home of East Liverpool's new municipal court would not be "keeping faith with the donor," according to word received today by Mayor Charles Brown from James Bertram, secretary of the Carnegie corporation, New York.

Bertram forwarded newspaper clippings, telling of council's proposed plan of converting unoccupied rooms on the second floor of the library building, Broadway and Fourth street, for court purposes.

"It must be realized that the building was asked and given for free library purposes," Mr. Bertram's letter read. "These buildings have usually included in the basement a lecture room, directly supplementing library work through lectures, literary clubs, etc. Other than that the building cannot be used for any but strictly library purposes and still keep faith with the donor."

The library board after hearing council's plan to use the building refused to consider the request, holding that the use of the building might be a violation of the grant by which the building was erected and donated to the city.

The solons later leased the second and third floors of the George C. Thompson building, Fourth and Market streets, for the new court.

TAX CUT BILL BEFORE SENATE

Numerous Amendments Planned in Upper House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The $325,000,000 tax reduction bill, passed by the house in record time and by a record vote, went to the senate today where it will not receive such speedy attention or respect as the house accorded it.

Numerous amendments are planned for it in the senate, and the most sanguine supporters do not expect it to emerge in final form until early March. It will be the aim, however, to get it through by March 15, the date on which returns are due for 1925 incomes.

Only 25 votes were cast against the bill in the house, as against the overwhelming total of 390 in its favor. The opposition was furnished by the Republican insurgents and a handful of Democrats, all of whom contended that it was a "rich man's tax bill" and did not give the "little fellow" a proportionate cut.

"Under this bill," said Representative Rainey (D.) of Illinois, "only 214 taxpayers benefit by about $60,000,000, whereas 2,300,000 taxpayers are benefited about $10 apiece. Is that a fair tax bill?"

Rainey referred to the 50 per cent cut in the surtaxes on big incomes.

In the senate the bill goes to the finance committee where the Democrats plan numerous changes in its present provisions.

MITCHELL ROW STILL BOILING

Rumors of Resignations Heard—"Flying Colonel" Silent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19. — Rather than quieting down as was expected by the war department, the controversy kicked up by Colonel William Mitchell continued to boil today.

From a variety of sources came disquieting news to military officials who believed the court-martial decision would mark the closing chapter in their long drawn out fight over an aviation policy with the "flying colonel."

Reports from scattered sections of the country indicated that an imposing number of resignations might be turned in by military sympathizers of Mitchell. Many congressmen have indicated they are out "gunning" for the war department, and the army personnel itself is divided over the fairness of the suspension verdict.

The gravest concern was felt by many officials over the possibility that the department's appropriations would be fought in congress in retaliation for the bitter fight against the aviator.

Mitchell himself continued to remain silent today. He told friends that until his sentence had gone through departmental channels to the president and been finally passed upon, he would have "nothing to say."

President's Kin Challenges Mellie In Fiddle Playing

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Dec. 19.—"I can fiddle Mellie Dunham all hollow. Ask Cal, he knows."

"Uncle John" J. Wilder, relative of the president by marriage, was speaking today—Vermont challenging Maine.

"Uncle John" let it be known, too, that the boyish feet of Calvin Coolidge of 10 moved to the rhythmic music of the Vermont fiddle.

"I've played a good deal in my time," declared "Uncle John," who is 79 and has been fiddling 66 years. "Mellie" Dunham, Maine champion who played for Henry Ford, has been fiddling only 58 years.

"I've played for dances all over Vermont," continued "Uncle John." "If Dunham says he filled every corner of the hall, why I rise to state that I crowded and crushed the corner with fiddle music."

ALLEGED BURGLAR DOES DAREDEVIL STUNTS IN VAIN SEARCH FOR LIQUOR

BOSTON, Dec. 19—A leap from the ledge of the third story of a South End house across a six-foot areaway through the glass window into a room where two girls were sleeping, a 30-foot drop from another window to the street, the dodging of bullets from a policeman's revolver and a collapse in the street from a bullet wound in the knee—these were the highlights in the sensational chase and capture today of James L. Johnson, 27, of Hartford, Conn., who, with a companion, attempted to burgle a drug store of liquor and narcotics.

George V. Hout, 24, also of Hartford, was captured inside the drug store.

"What a fool I am, I did this for women," Johnson told police.

Two women, one a chorus girl, found in the hotel room where Johnson and Hout were stopping were questioned.

Investigate Accident.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19. — Pennsylvania train No. 32, a night pullman from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia, was wrecked at Bennington, Pa., early today, according to meagre advices received at the company's offices here.

Seven coaches and the locomotive left the rails, it was reported, resulting in injuries to many passengers.

Pennsylvania railroad officials rushed to the scene of the accident.

TODAY

New York city. Millions upon millions are poured out; no one notices it.

One man, F. F. French, announces a building project to supply living quarters for 800,000 people. They will be housed in buildings towering toward the sky and covering a small plot on Manhattan island. In one corner of New York there will be a new little group of 800,000 people, in itself, "One of the great cities of America."

What will happen if New York ever has a real estate boom?

Sir Oliver Lodge thinks the human race may be 100,000 years old. Human beings and their history are "still in the morning of time," says the great scientist. If it be true that we are only 12,000 years from the late stone age, the other 88,000 years might well have been enough to raise men from a long-toothed, heavy-jawed "primitive" to the relatively civilized stone age man.

Change are slow or they are violently rapid. For thousands of years men were content to travel on animals, or slowly moving, clumsy vehicles.

And in less than one century came the change to the steam railroad, automobiles, flying machine, the submarine and from the messenger on foot to wireless.

What will the race do in the next 1,000,000 years?

You have seen a picture of the flood with women, children, tigers and other wild beasts gathered on a narrow ledge of rock, not hurting each other. The flood curbed their fierceness.

Similarly, in France, with the franc in danger, you see "Conservatives," "Moderates," extreme radicals, crowding together to help the franc, forgetting hatred for each other.

"If the franc should go, all would go," says the leaders, "and even though we hate each other we must consider that fact."

But the franc won't go, and one fine day those that are selling it short will wake up with a headache.

England, celebrating Locarno, suggests to France: "Let's cut down our fighting air fleet and save money."

France imitates Brother Rabbit and says nothing. The French have the fighting air machines, and with them they have safety. The English have gigantic fleets on the water, battleships out of date, merchant ships at the mercy of flyers.

Every little French boy learns by heart La Fontaine's fable about the fox with his tail cut off. France will keep her air force.

Coolidge, Kellogg and Senate Leaders Confer.

FEB. 15 MEETING

Plan Discussion of Disarmament Session Program.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The United States probably will be represented in the meeting of the powers at Geneva on Feb. 15, next, to discuss the preliminaries and arrangements for the disarmament conference that the League of Nations proposes to stage at a later date.

Definite decision is still lacking, but it was learned today that the conferences that have been proceeding between President Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg and senate leaders have developed a general feeling that the United States should take part in the preliminary discussions—irrespective of what later action is determined upon in relation to the conference itself.

President Coolidge is proceeding cautiously in the matter. He has informed senate leaders that he does not wish to undertake any commitments unless he is assured of the general support of congress, whose sanction would be necessary in any event before the United States could fully participate in the conference.

REQUESTS 12 YULE TREES

Salvation Army Asks Aid in Christmas Relief Plans.

A request for about a dozen Christmas trees, small and large, for decorating purposes, was made by Field Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, today.

The Salvation Army is also in need of lumber with which to build a temporary store house and shelves for the 300 Christmas dinners which will be distributed to needy families of the district. Any one having lumber which might be used for this purpose are requested to communicate with Major Hughes at the Army barracks.

Mr. Hughes received a report from Chester last evening that a collection from a Sunday school had been turned over to the representatives of a relief organization believed to be the Salvation Army. Mr. Hughes stated that the money had not been turned into the local organization and that it probably went to an organization in Moundsville, which is engaged in welfare work among convicts as they are released from the state penitentiary.

The relief fund today totaled $2,054.24, which is approximately two-thirds of the amount needed to finance the winter's relief work. Collections yesterday included $84, which came in through the mails, $19.36, which was deposited in the kettles, and $17.54 which a committee secured through personal solicitation.

and powdered mica for snow effects instead of the highly dangerous paper clippings and cotton.

"Do not illuminate the tree with candles. Colored electric light assemblies are more ornamental and, if used with care, are safer. A spot light focused upon the tree is, however, the safest method of all, and gives a highly pleasing effect.

"Smokers should exercise great care with their matches and smoking materials while near trees and decorations. Keep matches out of the reach of small children.

Avoid Cotton Whiskers.

"Toys requiring alcohol, gasoline or kerosene should be avoided, as should the flimsy toy motion-picture machines using inflammable films.

"Cheap electrical playthings should be forbidden, as they are often defectively wired and have insecure, dangerous connections. Such electrical apparatus may cause serious burns and fires.

"If it is felt that Santa Claus must be present at the celebration, the impersonator should avoid long cotton whiskers, and should keep away from open lights and fires. As an additional precaution, the costume used should be made partially fireproof by spraying upon it a solution of water glass, obtainable at any drug store.

"If any one's clothing does catch fire, the victim should be promptly rolled in a rug or woolen cloth in order to smother the flames, which should be kept from the face.

"In order to prevent the spread of any fires that may start, a bucket or two of water and a fire extinguisher should be kept ready at hand.

"Merchants should keep their places of business free from such rubbish and paper accumulations, and should insist that employes keep all exits clear.

"A most important safeguard is to remove all evergreens immediately after Christmas, before they become completely dried out."

RULE AGAINST LIBRARY USE AS COURTROOM

Carnegie Corporation Says it Would be Breach of Faith.

LETTER TO MAYOR

Attention Directed to Proposal by Clippings From Newspaper.

Use the second floor of the Carnegie library for the home of East Liverpool's new municipal court would not be "keeping faith with the donor," according to word received today by Mayor Charles Brown from James Bertram, secretary of the Carnegie corporation, New York.

Bertram forwarded newspaper clippings, telling of council's proposed plan of converting unoccupied rooms on the second floor of the library building, Broadway and Fourth street, for court purposes.

"It must be realized that the building was asked and given for free library purposes," Mr. Bertram's letter read. "These buildings have usually included in the basement a lecture room, directly supplementing library work through lectures, liteerary clubs, etc. Other than that the building cannot be used for any but strictly library purposes and still keep faith with the donor."

The library board after hearing council's plan to use the building refused to consider the request, holding that the use of the building might be a violation of the grant by which the building was erected and donated to the city.

The solons later leased the second and third floors of the George C. Thompson building, Fourth and Market streets, for the new court.

TAX CUT BILL BEFORE SENATE

Numerous Amendments Planned in Upper House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The $325,000,000 tax reduction bill, passed by the house in record time and by a record vote, went to the senate today where it will not receive such speedy attention or respect as the house accorded it.

Numerous amendments are planned for it in the senate, and the most sanguine supporters do not expect it to emerge in final form until early March. It will be the aim, however, to get it through by March 15, the date on which returns are due for 1925 incomes.

Only 25 votes were cast against the bill in the house, as against the overwhelming total of 390 in its favor. The opposition was furnished by the Republican insurgents and a handful of Democrats, all of whom contended that it was a "rich man's tax bill" and did not give the "little fellow" a proportionate cut.

"Under this bill," said Representative Rainey (D.) of Illinois, "only 214 taxpayers benefit by about $60,000,000, whereas 2,300,000 taxpayers are benefited about $10 apiece. Is that a fair tax bill?"

Rainey referred to the 50 per cent cut in the surtaxes on big incomes.

In the senate the bill goes to the finance committee where the Democrats plan numerous changes in its present provisions.

MITCHELL ROW STILL BOILING

Rumors of Resignations Heard—"Flying Colonel" Silent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19. — Rather than quieting down as was expected by the war department, the controversy kicked up by Colonel William Mitchell continued to boil today.

From a variety of sources came disquieting news to military officials who believed the court-martial decision would mark the closing chapter in their long drawn out fight over an aviation policy with the "flying colonel."

Reports from scattered sections of the country indicated that an imposing number of resignations might be turned in by military sympathizers of Mitchell. Many congressmen have indicated they are out "gunning" for the war department, and the army personnel itself is divided over the fairness of the suspension verdict.

The gravest concern was felt by many officials over the possibility that the department's appropriations would be fought in congress in retaliation for the bitter fight against the aviator.

Mitchell himself continued to remain silent today. He told friends that until his sentence had gone through departmental channels to the president and been finally passed upon, he would have "nothing to say."

President's Kin Challenges Mellie In Fiddle Playing

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Dec. 19.—"I can fiddle Mellie Dunham all hollow. Ask Cal, he knows."

"Uncle John" J. Wilder, relative of the president by marriage, was speaking today—Vermont challenging Maine.

"Uncle John" let it be known, too, that the boyish feet of Calvin Coolidge of 10 moved to the rhythmic music of the Vermont fiddle.

"I've played a good deal in my time," declared "Uncle John," who is 79 and has been fiddling 66 years. "Mellie" Dunham, Maine champion who played for Henry Ford, has been fiddling only 58 years.

"I've played for dances all over Vermont," continued "Uncle John." "If Dunham says he filled every corner of the hall, why I rise to state that I crowded and crushed the corner with fiddle music."

ALLEGED BURGLAR DOES DAREDEVIL STUNTS IN VAIN SEARCH FOR LIQUOR

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—A leap from the ledge of the third story of a South End house across a six-foot areaway through the glass window into a room where two girls were sleeping, a 30-foot drop from another window to the street, the dodging of bullets from a policeman's revolver and a collapse in the street from a bullet wound in the knee—these were the highlights in the sensational chase and capture today of James L. Johnson, 27, of Hartford, Conn., who, with a companion, attempted to burgle a drug store of liquor and narcotics.

George V. Hout, 24, also of Hartford, was captured inside the drug store.

"What a fool I am, I did this for women," Johnson told police.

Two women, one a chorus girl, found in the hotel room where Johnson and Hout were stopping were questioned.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19. — Pennsylvania train No. 32, a night pullman from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia, was wrecked at Bennington, Pa., early today, according to meagre advices received at the company's offices here.

Pennsylvania railroad officials rushed to the scene of the accident.

TODAY

New York city. Millions upon millions are poured out; no one notices it.

One man, F. F. French, announces a building project to supply living quarters for 800,000 people. They will be housed in buildings towering toward the sky and covering a small plot on Manhattan island. In one corner of New York there will be a new little group of 800,000 people, in itself, "One of the great cities of America."

What will happen if New York ever has a real estate boom?

Sir Oliver Lodge thinks the human race may be 100,000 years old. Human beings and their history are "still in the morning of time," says the great scientist. If it be true that we are only 12,000 years from the late stone age, the other 88,000 years might well have been enough to raise men from a long-toothed, heavy-jawed "primitive" to the relatively civilized stone age man.

Change are slow or they are violently rapid. For thousands of years men were content to travel on animals, or slowly moving, clumsy vehicles.

And in less than one century came the change to the steam railroad, automobiles, flying machine, the submarine and from the messenger on foot to wireless.

What will the race do in the next 1,000,000 years?

You have seen a picture of the flood with women, children, tigers and other wild beasts gathered on a narrow ledge of rock, not hurting each other. The flood curbed their fierceness.

Similarly, in France, with the franc in danger, you see "Conservatives," "Moderates," extreme radicals, crowding together to help the franc, forgetting hatred for each other.

"If the franc should go, all would go," says the leaders, "and even though we hate each other we must consider that fact."

But the franc won't go, and one fine day those that are selling it short will wake up with a headache.

England, celebrating Locarno, suggests to France: "Let's cut down our fighting air fleet and save money."

France imitates Brother Rabbit and says nothing. The French have the fighting air machines, and with them they have safety. The English have gigantic fleets on the water, battleships out of date, merchant ships at the mercy of flyers.

Every little French boy learns by heart La Fontaine's fable about the fox with his tail cut off. France will keep her air force.

Coolidge, Kellogg and Senate Leaders Confer.

FEB. 15 MEETING

Plan Discussion of Disarmament Session Program.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The United States probably will be represented in the meeting of the powers at Geneva on Feb. 15, next, to discuss the preliminaries and arrangements for the disarmament conference that the League of Nations proposes to stage at a later date.

Definite decision is still lacking, but it was learned today that the conferences that have been proceeding between President Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg and senate leaders have developed a general feeling that the United States should take part in the preliminary discussions—irrespective of what later action is determined upon in relation to the conference itself.

President Coolidge is proceeding cautiously in the matter. He has informed senate leaders that he does not wish to undertake any commitments unless he is assured of the general support of congress, whose sanction would be necessary in any event before the United States could fully participate in the conference.

REQUESTS 12 YULE TREES

Salvation Army Asks Aid in Christmas Relief Plans.

A request for about a dozen Christmas trees, small and large, for decorating purposes, was made by Field Major Joseph Hughes of the Salvation Army, today.

The Salvation Army is also in need of lumber with which to build a temporary store house and shelves for the 300 Christmas dinners which will be distributed to needy families of the district. Any one having lumber which might be used for this purpose are requested to communicate with Major Hughes at the Army barracks.

Mr. Hughes received a report from Chester last evening that a collection from a Sunday school had been turned over to the representatives of a relief organization believed to be the Salvation Army. Mr. Hughes stated that the money had not been turned into the local organization and that it probably went to an organization in Moundsville, which is engaged in welfare work among convicts as they are released from the state penitentiary.

The relief fund today totaled $2,054.24, which is approximately two-thirds of the amount needed to finance the winter's relief work. Collections yesterday included $84, which came in through the mails, $19.36, which was deposited in the kettles, and $17.54 which a committee secured through personal solicitation.

"Do not illuminate the tree with candles. Colored electric light assemblies are more ornamental and if used with care, are safer. A spot light focused upon the tree is, however, the safest method of all, and gives a highly pleasing effect.

"Smokers should exercise great care with their matches and smoking materials while near trees and decorations. Keep matches out of the reach of small children.

Avoid Cotton Whiskers.

"Toys requiring alcohol, gasoline or kerosene should be avoided, as should the flimsy toy motion-picture machines using inflammable films.

"Cheap electrical playthings should be forbidden, as they are often defectively wired and have insecure, dangerous connections. Such electrical apparatus may cause serious burns and fires.

"If it is felt that Santa Claus must be present at the celebration, the impersonator should avoid long cotton whiskers, and should keep away from open lights and fires. As an additional precaution, the costume used should be made partially fireproof by spraying upon it a solution of water glass, obtainable at any drug store.

"If any one's clothing does catch fire, the victim should be promptly rolled in a rug or woolen cloth in order to smother the flames, which should be kept from the face.

"In order to prevent the spread of any fires that may start, a bucket or two of water and a fire extinguisher should be kept ready at hand.

"Merchants should keep their places of business free from such rubbish and paper accumulations, and should insist that employes keep all exits clear.

"A most important safeguard is to remove all evergreens immediately after Christmas, before they become completely dried out."

SEAL CAMPAIGN NEARING CLOSE

Drive Being Directed By Members of Woman's Club.

Annual Christmas health seal campaign in Chester and viciniy under the auspices of the Chester Woman's club of which Mrs. J. E. Swindell is chairman, is drawing to a close with the approach of Christmas.

More than thirteen million of the official anti-tuberculosis seals have been distributed throughout the state by the West Virginia Tuberculosis association, to the affiliated county seal committees who assumed the responsibility by contract to organize and conduct the campaign. In other counties seals have been mailed direct to thousands of persons, so that they may have an opportunity to purchase them and thus participate in the organized effort being made by the state organization for the prevention of tuberculosis and the promotion of public health in the state.

In a recent letter to the Tuberculosis Seal committee Governor Howard M. Gore endorsed the program of the state association as follows:

"The West Virginia Tuberculosis association is rendering valiant service in the effort to control the great white plague in this state. The substantially expressed good will of the public in support of this worthy cause, will have a desirable effect upon the volunteer expansion program. Likewise, it will stimulate and promote the work of our state and county official health and educational departments.

"I take this opportunity as governor of the state, to extend sincere appreciation for the helpful service of the county chairman and co-workers in the seal sale that month of December of this year."

TRUCK DRIVER IS FINED BY MAYOR

SEAL CAMPAIGN NEARING CLOSE

Drive Being Directed By Members of Woman's Club.

Annual Christmas health seal campaign in Chester and viciniy under the auspices of the Chester Woman's club of which Mrs. J. E. Swindell is chairman, is drawing to a close with the approach of Christmas.

More than thirteen million of the official anti-tuberculosis seals have been distributed throughout the state by the West Virginia Tuberculosis association, to the affiliated county seal committees who assumed the responsibility by contract to organize and conduct the campaign. In other counties seals have been mailed direct to thousands of persons, so that they may have an opportunity to purchase them and thus participate in the organized effort being made by the state organization for the prevention of tuberculosis and the promotion of public health in the state.

In a recent letter to the Tuberculosis Seal committee Governor Howard M. Gore endorsed the program of the state association as follows:

"The West Virginia Tuberculosis association is rendering valiant service in the effort to control the great white plague in this state. The substantially expressed good will of the public in support of this worthy cause, will have a desirable effect upon the volunteer expansion program. Likewise, it will stimulate and promote the work of our state and county official health and educational departments.

"I take this opportunity as governor of the state, to extend sincere appreciation for the helpful service of the county chairman and co-workers in the seal sale that month of December of this year."

NEW SALE BILL MARK RECORDED

Another record was cracked in the office of Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine Friday when 129 bills of sale were recorded, this being an increase of six above the record of Tuesday, when 123 were received for record.

Should the present activity in this department of the clerk of courts office continue, it is believed that the August record will be exceeded, when a few more than 1,600 bills of sale were recorded. The present activity is due to the fact that no licenses are to be granted owners of automobiles unless a bill of sale, previously recorded, is presented at the time of application for a license is made.

Journal Entry Approved.

An entry made by Judge James G. Moore Dec. 7th last in the case of John Rogers of Salem as plaintiff in error against the state of Ohio as defendant in error, in which the decision of the lower court, or that of Mayor George Russell of Salem was affirmed, has been set aside and a new journal entry has been approved.

DAMAGE ACTION SETTLED HERE

A settlement has been reached in the $1,000 damage action filed in common pleas court by Virginia Belle Shope, aged 7 years, of Salem, which was filed by her father, as her next friend, against Laurence L. McCluggage. There was a trial to the court, a jury being waived, and a settlement was made on a basis of $200. The case grew out of an automobile accident, and was filed several days ago, so that a court record could be had as to the adjustment of the claim.

Court Confirms Sale.

In the case of Edwin W. Powers against Rosetta Guy, the court has confirmed the sale of certain premises and a deed and distribution has been ordered. In this action the petition of the defendant has been dismissed by the court without prejudice.

Gas Leases Sold.

According to an agreement filed for record at Lisbon, H. B. Gardner has sold a half working interest in 13 oil and gas leases in Hanover township, totaling 1,026 acres to B. L. Herring and W. W. Core. In this agreement, the fact has been also made known that Herring has sold his interest in these leases to Core.

A marriage license has been granted Solomon H. Hileman, of Leetonia, but formerly of Washingtonville, and Alice Conkle, of Leetonia but formerly residing at Enon Valley. They are to be married by the Rev. Kern.

Archie Ferguson, a native of Scotland, but now operating a hotel at Leetonia, and Anna Laura Mellinger, a nurse, residing at Salem, have been granted a marriage license and are to be married by the Rev. Miller.

For his own family Santa Claus chooses Gifts That Last

SOME folks think of the jewelry store as the place to go, chiefly, for those gifts where expense is the second consideration.

But not Santa Claus! That canny old gift expert knows better than that!

He judges the worth of a gift not alone by what it costs, but by what it yields—in service and satisfaction. . . . And long ago, he discovered that a dollar goes farther at the jewelry store than it does anywhere else, in procuring enduring usefulness and pleasure.

For the jeweler deals in imperishables—in gifts that last, like the fidelity of a fine friendship, for as long as life itself!

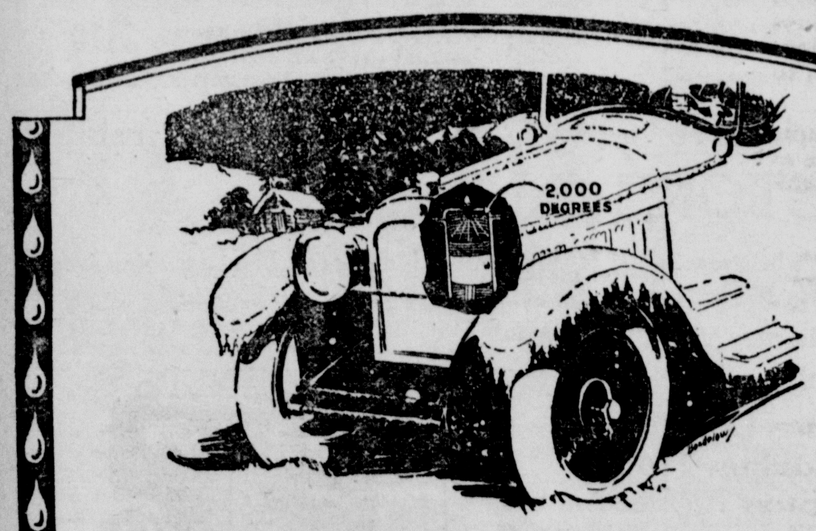

Specializing in jewels, the jeweler sees to it that every article in his stock is truly a jewel. And whether it be for adornment or for utility, it must measure up to jewel-standards, in craftsmanship and integrity.

He who must coddle a lean purse or she who may indulge a fat one, both will find there the gifts they would most like to give—comfortably priced within their respective Christmas budgets.

But whatever the price, the quality is always jeweler's quality—uncompromising in its fine standards.

Ask Santa Claus! He knows!

Cold Days—HOT Motors

The weather has little effect upon the operating temperature of your motor. It may be freezing outside, yet within the engine's combustion chamber, the temperature is approximately 2000° F., as usual.

Why, then, should you use some special motor oil in winter? Isn't it necessary that at all times you use the oil highest in heat resisting properties—one that is never doctored at the expense of its protective properties?

FREEDOM Perfect Motor Oil has a heat test 100 degrees higher than ordinary oils. It is refined from 100% Pennsylvania Crude by specialists of 46 years experience. Continue to ask for it by name.

NEW SALE BILL MARK RECORDED

Another record was cracked in the office of Clerk of Courts Frank Ballantine Friday when 129 bills of sale were recorded, this being an increase of six above the record of Tuesday, when 123 were received for record.

Should the present activity in this department of the clerk of courts office continue, it is believed that the August record will be exceeded, when a few more than 1,600 bills of sale were recorded. The present activity is due to the fact that no licenses are to be granted owners of automobiles unless a bill of sale, previously recorded, is presented at the time of application for a license is made.

McCluggage. There was a trial to the court, a jury being waived, and a settlement was made on a basis of $200. The case grew out of an automobile accident, and was filed several days ago, so that a court record could be had as to the adjustment of the claim.

Cold Days—HOT Motors

The weather has little effect upon the operating temperature of your motor. It may be freezing outside, yet within the engine's combustion chamber, the temperature is approximately 2000° F., as usual.

Why, then, should you use some special motor oil in winter? Isn't it necessary that at all times you use the oil highest in heat resisting properties—one that is never doctored at the expense of its protective properties?

FREEDOM Perfect Motor Oil has a heat test 100 degrees higher than ordinary oils. It is refined from 100% Pennsylvania Crude by specialists of 46 years experience. Continue to ask for it by name.

For his own family Santa Claus chooses Gifts That Last

SOME folks think of the jewelry store as the place to go, chiefly, for those gifts where expense is the second consideration.

But not Santa Claus! That canny old gift expert knows better than that!

He judges the worth of a gift not alone by what it costs, but by what it yields—in service and satisfaction. . . . And long ago, he discovered that a dollar goes farther at the jewelry store than it does anywhere else, in procuring enduring usefulness and pleasure.

For the jeweler deals in imperishables—in gifts that last, like the fidelity of a fine friendship, for as long as life itself!

Specializing in jewels, the jeweler sees to it that every article in his stock is truly a jewel. And whether it be for adornment or for utility, it must measure up to jewel-standards, in craftsmanship and integrity.

He who must coddle a lean purse or she who may indulge a fat one, both will find there the gifts they would most like to give—comfortably priced within their respective Christmas budgets.

But whatever the price, the quality is always jeweler's quality—uncompromising in its fine standards.

Ask Santa Claus! He knows!

REPORT IS MADE ON SCHOOL FIRES

A. A. Dorsey, deputy state fire marshal, has returned to Charleston after an inspection of school houses in the northern counties of the state.

An examination of the fire marshal's records revealed that 14 West Virginia school houses were burned between July 1 and November 30. That is exactly the same number that were destroyed in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1924.

Despite the marked increase of fires, the fire hazards of school buildings have been reduced, in the opinion of Mr. Topping and Mr. Dorsey. Most of these fires are due to neighborhood feuds and to controversies between the school authorities on the one hand and parents and pupils on the other, it was said.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

"ATLANTIS" IN PACIFIC MYTH, SCIENCE HOLDS

Noted Geologist of Vienna Discredits Theories of Sunken Continent in Western Seas.

Honolulu.—"Lemurial," "Mu," and all the other hypothetical vast land areas forming "lost" Pacific continents, like the lost Atlantis of ancient European imagination, receive no credence on the part of Dr. Francis Xavier Schaffer, noted geologist of Vienna, now traveling in the Pacific area and the Orient. Doctor Schaffer is backed up in his opinions also by the scientists at the Bernice P. Bishop museum of Honolulu.

Though no land areas of continental size ever existed in the Pacific, Doctor Schaffer believed, there are regions or movable zones where emergence and submergence are constantly in progress.

"Such a line," he said, "goes all around the Pacific and connects the Antarctic continent with the continents of the southern hemisphere. It is easy, too, to see that the northern continents may more than once have been connected by way of the Bering strait and by the rising of the relatively shallow sea bottom between Greenland and Europe.

Dr. Herbert E. Gregory, director of the Bishop museum, disagrees with the theory advanced by Dr. J. Macmillan Brown, chancellor of the University of New Zealand, who claims that the Pacific islands are the remnants of a once great empire that collapsed into the ocean in a series of cataclysms.

"Geological evidence," said Doctor Gregory, "gives no proof that there ever was a large area of land in the central Pacific. No rock has been found which could be considered part of an old continent. The only way that geologists will ever be able to make a real test of these theories will be by an extensive system of borings which must extend through the coral and the comparatively new levels of the islands, and also by a carefully planned sounding of the Pacific ocean."

"The lost-continent theory cannot be substantiated by botanical discoveries," said Dr. Forest B. H. Brown, botantist of the Bishop museum. "In the Hawaiian islands, for instance, over 80 per cent of the plants with net-veined leaves occur nowhere else in the world. Had Hawaii been a part of a continent of which the other Pacific islands were also parts, one would expect more plants in common to all."

Gypsy "King" Sails for Europe to Find "Queen"

New York.—Frank Kaslov, "king of American gypsies," is on the way to Europe to find a gypsy princess to make his queen.

The weeping and wailing of his followers at a steamship pier caused consternation to a special detail of secret service men who were escorting the Italian debt commission, headed by Count Giuseppe Volpi, to board a liner. A special guard accompanied them to the pier because of demonstrations by anti-Fascist Italians upon their arrival.

Wails, screams and cries greeted the party on arrival at the pier. The Italians learned that the followers of Kaslov, whose wife died a year ago, were giving him a farewell party as he set forth to find a new gypsy queen. Gypsy law, it was explained, requires that he must have a consort of royal blood and he is going to Venice to find one. He is forty-two and has six children.

"Such a line," he said, "goes all around the Pacific and connects the Antarctic continent with the continents of the southern hemisphere. It is easy, too, to see that the northern continents may more than once have been connected by way of the Bering strait and by the rising of the relatively shallow sea bottom between Greenland and Europe.

Dr. Herbert E. Gregory, director of the Bishop museum, disagrees with the theory advanced by Dr. J. Macmillan Brown, chancellor of the University of New Zealand, who claims that the Pacific islands are the remnants of a once great empire that collapsed into the ocean in a series of cataclysms.

"Geological evidence," said Doctor Gregory, "gives no proof that there ever was a large area of land in the central Pacific. No rock has been found which could be considered part of an old continent. The only way that geologists will ever be able to make a real test of these theories will be by an extensive system of borings which must extend through the coral and the comparatively new levels of the islands, and also by a carefully planned sounding of the Pacific ocean."

"The lost-continent theory cannot be substantiated by botanical discoveries," said Dr. Forest B. H. Brown, botantist of the Bishop museum. "In the Hawaiian islands, for instance, over 80 per cent of the plants with net-veined leaves occur nowhere else in the world. Had Hawaii been a part of a continent of which the other Pacific islands were also parts, one would expect more plants in common to all."

Gypsy "King" Sails for Europe to Find "Queen"

New York.—Frank Kaslov, "king of American gypsies," is on the way to Europe to find a gypsy princess to make his queen.

The weeping and wailing of his followers at a steamship pier caused consternation to a special detail of secret service men who were escorting the Italian debt commission, headed by Count Giuseppe Volpi, to board a liner. A special guard accompanied them to the pier because of demonstrations by anti-Fascist Italians upon their arrival.

Wails, screams and cries greeted the party on arrival at the pier. The Italians learned that the followers of Kaslov, whose wife died a year ago, were giving him a farewell party as he set forth to find a new gypsy queen. Gypsy law, it was explained, requires that he must have a consort of royal blood and he is going to Venice to find one. He is forty-two and has six children.

"Man on The Box" Puts Syd Chaplin Again at the Top

Warner Brothers outbid all other picture producers for the services of Syd Chaplin, because they believed they had the very story he needed to duplicate his phenomenal success in "Charley's Aunt."

"The Man on the Box," the celebrated novel and play by Harold MacGrath was the vehicle selected for Chaplin, and it will begin a three-day run on Monday, at the American theatre with Chaplin heading a cast that includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun, Theodore Lorch, Helene Costello, E. J. Ratcliffe, Charles F. Reisner, Charles Gerrard and Henry Barrows.

The story concerns the adventures of charming Bob Warburton, who finds himself amusingly involved in a hornet's nest of intrigue that leaves him homeless and jobless, in the mysterious night, clad only in his pajamas. He has invested $50,000 in a new flying machine and two Russian spys are intent upon stealing the plans of the plane. Romance stalks unfettered throughout the picture, which is said to be a series of ridiculous misadventures.

Charles A. Logue adapted the novel to the screen, and Julien Josephson wrote the scenario. Charles "Chuck" Reisner directed.

Lorah Passers Show Strength In Opener

Hold Visitors on Even Footing for Two Periods and Take Lead in Third, Only to Lose When Taylor Combine Stages Great Rally.

THAT well known Horatius Cocles, hero of ancient Rome, who so valiantly defended the equally known Sublician bridge over the Tiber against the advancing Tarquins put up no gamer scrap against his harrassers, displayed no greater courage in the face of odds, than did Lorah's Blue and White youngsters last night in their inaugural cour appearance here against Sam Taylor's fast, heavy Franklin & Marshall accademy quintet, who carried off a 33 to 27 triumph after the toughest scrap they've run into this year.

Only a mighty fourth quarter rally by the Pennsylvanians, who, in this period, came from behind a five-point lead held by the locals and piled up 13 counters, enabled them to win.

Greatly outweighed and playing their first real game, the Lorah five left little room for criticism.

At no time during the entire scrap, until the fourth period, were Sam Taylor's proteges out in front by more than a point or so. On frequent occasions the score was tied. And, finally, in the third period when Tom Pusey began a bombardment of the F. & M. hoop, the East Liverpool passers actually went into the lead and held it for the larger portion of the period against the desperate lunges of an equally desperate foe.

Fresh from two recent victories, scoring 84 points in one and 54 in the other, the Pennsylvanians, in that third period, were staring defeat in the face, defeat by a bunch of lightweight youngsters playing their first game as a team. As a result, the visitors waged a do or die battle in the concluding frame, and the locals, their endurance waning under the constant hammering, saw Wyant, Kunzler, Beaver and Bob Pusey slip in the field goals that won.

Lorah's five displayed a snappy offense and their defense was first rate. Guards Wyant and McConville, of F. & M., two old heads at the game, successfully kept the East Liverpool forwards from immediate reach of the baskets the majority of the time, but this failed to have any effect on Tom Pusey, who caged the leather six times during the game, chiefly from mid-floor territory.

The East Liverpool defense had an equal effect on the visitors' offensive movements and they, too, utilized long shots at frequent intervals.

The foul shooting was the weak spot. In 15 attempts the visitors made three good ones. The locals had a similar record. A lot of points went to waste here.

In the preliminary, played by girls' teams, the Blues defeated the Reds, 13 to 9.

Tonight Franklin and Marshall will clash with the East Liverpool Ex-Collegians at the high school court. Another capacity house is expected.

"Kid Alberts."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 17.—"Kid Alberts" is now Mr. Al Graff. His profession is now law instead of pugilism. From one of the best known boxers in the middle west he hopes to become as equally well known a lawyer. In other words, "Kid Alberts" has just passed the Missouri bar examination and entered upon the practice of law.

His story reads like a page torn from fiction. Instead of "working his way through college," he literally "fought his way through college."

In the years he attended high school in St. Louis, he earned his expenses by means of frequent matches which netted him a few more dollars each time. When he entered the law school of Washington University here five years ago, he had already attained such a reputation that the university hired him as its first instructor in boxing and wrestling. JOEY SEWELL KNOWS THE REASON For Baseball Bats League Pitchers Will Aver

Nothing, to the mind of the average baseball fan, can look more absurd and negligible, than a husky .300 hitter swinging wildly three times and then walking to the bench.

This being the case, Joey Sewell, peppery shortstop of the Cleveland Indians, has had fewer occasions to be the recipient of pitying glances, disparaging remarks and uncouth catcalls than any other player in the American league in recent seasons.

For last year he struck out but four times in the whole campaign. In 1924 he fanned just 13 times and in the preceding season 12 times—a total of but 29 whiffs in three years. Which is a minor number of whiffs, even in these days of prohibition.

Admitted Joey's size—he's a scant pint in size—and the fact that he bats from the first base side of the plate may have something to do with his success in connecting these angles cannot be the only factors. There are several men in the circuit who have these same qualifications. But Sewell, the records indicate, also has an uncanny ability to pick one and connect. He may drive one into a waiting fielder's hands, of course, but he connects—and by that simple act places the opposing team on the defensive, opens the way for possible blunders, and a chance to reach first.

And despite the shortcoming of the season, the failure of Judge Landis to eliminate circus seats, and the raise given Ban Johnson, the main idea in baseball is to reach first base.

Kaplan Ably Defends Title Against Herman

Keeps Challenger Off Balance Through 15 Rounds by Beating Him to the Punch; Pacific Coast Fighter Slows up Toward End.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, champion, was the winner over Babe Herman, challenger from California, and the seventh time proved it. It wasn't even close. Kaplin simply bulldozed the challenger out of any idea he may have had of winning the featherweight championship of the world and the Meriden entry breezed home in defense of his title.

Kaplan kept his man off balance through the greater part of fifteen rounds by beating him to the punch. He led from the opening bell and, being in wonderful condition, carried the pace to Herman all the way. He was just a little bit too strong for the challenger, who, being a smart young man, realized this fact at the earliest moment and conducted himself accordingly.

Herman, as a challenger, was a very second-rate proposition. Ordinarily, he was supposed to have something on Kaplan in a man to man duel, but last night the business went wrong. Kaplan, in wonderful condition, bounced out of his corner nad proceeded to slap the challenger silly at the opening bell. He kept on doing it for the remainder of the fifteen rounds.

Kaplan Forces Fight.

The fight substantiated more or less Kaplan's assertion that he was a sick man in their previous meeting at Waterbury, Conn., when the champion was badly beaten by the Californian, although the Judges decided otherwise.

Kaplan won because he forced the battle all the way. The pace was too fast for Herman, who slowed up noticeably toward the end of the fight.

Herman was at no time in danger, however, as Kaplan's blows lacked knockout force. The Californian landed many clean wallops but never had the champion worried.

Kaplan carried the fighting through the first six rounds, winning them easily. He excelled Herman both at infighting and exchanging wallops at long range.

The only damage inflicted by Herman during these rounds was a blow to Kaplan's nose in the first round and a right which drew blood from the champion's left ear in the third.

Herman Rallied in Tenth.

Herman's big chance came in the tenth session, but he failed to take advantage of it. Two hard rights to the jaw staggered the champion whose knees sagged. The Californian landed a terrific barrage of rights and lefts to Kaplan's jaw, but the champion weathered the storm and floored the challenger with a right to the jaw as the round ended.

Herman staged another rally in the fourteenth, but Kaplan again staved him off and came back with another strong counter-attack.

Kaplan won twelve of the fifteen rounds. The seventh was even and Herman took the tenth and fourteenth.

The fight kept a crowd of 16,000 on edge, as Herman's rallies always raised the possibility of a knockout. The seventh round was the only dull chapter of the evening.

In the semi-final, Honeyboy Finnegan, Boston featherweight, won from Bobby Garcia, of Baltimore, in the sixth round. Garcia was repeatedly warned against hitting low and was finally disqualified.

Fred Spuhn, recently named rowing coach at the University of Pennsylvania to succeed the famous Jim Rice, is a graduate of Washington University, where he was a shell star. He will instill western rowing methods in the Penn crew.

GERSHE KAYOED BY EDDIE SHEA

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19.—Saved by the bell in the third round, only to go down for the count of ten in the fourth round, Benny Gershe, Cleveland featherweight, last night received perhaps a decisive setback in his hopes for a chance to fight for the featherweight title. Eddie Shea, his Chicago opponent, had Gershe in trouble from the opening bell.

Maxie Holub of Akron defeated Art Wander, of Buffalo, in the semi-final. He floored his opponent in the fourth for a count of five, and in the seventh and eight rounds had him near a knockout, but was unable to land the decisive punch.

He led from the opening bell and, being in wonderful condition, carried the pace to Herman all the way. He was just a little bit too strong for the challenger, who, being a smart young man, realized this fact at the earliest moment and conducted himself accordingly.

Herman, as a challenger, was a very second-rate proposition. Ordinarily, he was supposed to have something on Kaplan in a man to man duel, but last night the business went wrong. Kaplan, in wonderful condition, bounced out of his corner nad proceeded to slap the challenger silly at the opening bell. He kept on doing it for the remainder of the fifteen rounds.

Kaplan Forces Fight.

The fight substantiated more or less Kaplan's assertion that he was a sick man in their previous meeting at Waterbury, Conn., when the champion was badly beaten by the Californian, although the Judges decided otherwise.

Kaplan won because he forced the battle all the way. The pace was too fast for Herman, who slowed up noticeably toward the end of the fight.

Herman was at no time in danger, however, as Kaplan's blows lacked knockout force. The Californian landed many clean wallops but never had the champion worried.

Kaplan carried the fighting through the first six rounds, winning them easily. He excelled Herman both at infighting and exchanging wallops at long range.

The only damage inflicted by Herman during these rounds was a blow to Kaplan's nose in the first round and a right which drew blood from the champion's left ear in the third.

Herman Rallied in Tenth.

Herman's big chance came in the tenth session, but he failed to take advantage of it. Two hard rights to the jaw staggered the champion whose knees sagged. The Californian landed a terrific barrage of rights and lefts to Kaplan's jaw, but the champion weathered the storm and floored the challenger with a right to the jaw as the round ended.

Herman staged another rally in the fourteenth, but Kaplan again staved him off and came back with another strong counter-attack.

Kaplan won twelve of the fifteen rounds. The seventh was even and Herman took the tenth and fourteenth.

The fight kept a crowd of 16,000 on edge, as Herman's rallies always raised the possibility of a knockout. The seventh round was the only dull chapter of the evening.

In the semi-final, Honeyboy Finnegan, Boston featherweight, won from Bobby Garcia, of Baltimore, in the sixth round. Garcia was repeatedly warned against hitting low and was finally disqualified.

GERSHE KAYOED BY EDDIE SHEA

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19.—Saved by the bell in the third round, only to go down for the count of ten in the fourth round, Benny Gershe, Cleveland featherweight, last night received perhaps a decisive setback in his hopes for a chance to fight for the featherweight title. Eddie Shea, his Chicago opponent, had Gershe in trouble from the opening bell.

Maxie Holub of Akron defeated Art Wander, of Buffalo, in the semi-final. He floored his opponent in the fourth for a count of five, and in the seventh and eight rounds had him near a knockout, but was unable to land the decisive punch.

Woman Made Curator of Yale Babylonian Relics

New Haven, Conn.—Faculty appointments at Yale university are featured by the naming of a woman as acting curator of the Yale Babylonian collection, the most complete of its kind in the world. The new curator is Miss Ettalene Mears Grice, who also will be assistant professor of Assyriology and Babylonian literature.

Miss Grice is a graduate of the Western College for Women and took advanced work in Semitics at Bryn Mawr. She obtained her Ph. D. in this department at Yale in 1917 under the late Prof. Albert T. Clay, whose assistant she became. As holder of the Kohut fellowship since 1919 she has been engaged in important Assyriological research.

Upon the death last month of Professor Clay, who was considered the world's leading archeologist. Doctor Grice was promptly considered as his successor. In addition to having charge of the important collection, she will teach elementary Assyrian, lecture on old Babylonian text and conduct the Assyrian seminary.

FIVE NEW MEN BECOME SOLONS ON NEW YEAR'S

Three Old Members Retain Councilmanic Places.

KERR PRESIDENT

Clyde Goodballet is Only Democrat in Assembly.

Five new faces will appear in city council next year, while three old members of the municipal legislative body will hold office for at least another term of two years.

New members include Clyde Goodballet, the only Democrat in the assembly, who will succeed J. R. Chambers as First ward councilman; Edgar Heddleston, who replaces James Larcombe as Second ward member; L. M. Poole, successor to J. B. Rowe; George Hughes, a former member of council, who takes the place of Fred Hardley, and O. J. Herrington, councilman-at-large, who succeeds N. P. Kerr, elected president of council to take the place of L. T. Capehart, who retires.

Thomas Farrall and Charles Hayes are the only present council members who were successful in their campaigns for re-election.

The present council probably will assemble for the last time next Wednesday evening. The next regular session is scheduled for Friday evening, but this being Christmas night the date was set forward.

The new legislators probably will meet Friday, January 8, when organization work will be undertaken. The budget for 1926 will be the first legislative wrestle during 1926.

Sessions during 1926 will be held in the municipal court headquarters on the third floor of the Thompson building, Fourth and Market streets. If council's plans do not miscarry, offices of the city auditor and city treasurer will be moved to the old council chamber on the second floor of the city building in the rooms now occupied by the auditor and treasurer.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" HERE

McManus' Cartoon Hit on Stage at Ceramic.

"Bringing Up Father in Gay New York," the last word in modern musical comedies, is the attraction at the Ceramic theater today. Based on the famous George McManus cartoons, the new offering has been acclaimed one of the best presented in many seasons. A genuine laugh-compelling vehicle, the kind that is certain to perpetuate the popularity of Jiggs, Maggie, Dinty Moore and the rest of the Mahoney clan, whose antics and escapades are daily chronicled in the leading newspapers throughout the United States. This time "Father" comes into his own, but only after he has outwitted Maggie in her mad and temporary successful authority over the worse henpecked husband and "Father" in captivity.

A "Father" show without a bevy of pretty young women forming a champion beauty chorus would not be complete. This year the pulchritude end of the contribution has been described as superior to similar offerings of previous seasons, which means that each succeeding year and this is the tenth witnesses the "best ever." As a rule these promises have been kept and if the new play lives up to advance publicity very few of the patrons of the Ceramic theater will be disappointed.

Eight boat-trains a day leave London for Paris, and a person may get a season ticket between the two capitals.

FIVE NEW MEN BECOME SOLONS ON NEW YEAR'S

Three Old Members Retain Councilmanic Places.

KERR PRESIDENT

Clyde Goodballet is Only Democrat in Assembly.

Five new faces will appear in city council next year, while three old members of the municipal legislative body will hold office for at least another term of two years.

New members include Clyde Goodballet, the only Democrat in the assembly, who will succeed J. R. Chambers as First ward councilman; Edgar Heddleston, who replaces James Larcombe as Second ward member; L. M. Poole, successor to J. B. Rowe; George Hughes, a former member of council, who takes the place of Fred Yardley, and O. J. Herrington, councilman-at-large, who succeeds N. P. Kerr, elected president of council to take the place of L. T. Capehart, who retires.

Thomas Farrall and Charles Hayes are the only present council members who were successful in their campaigns for re-election.

The present council probably will assemble for the last time next Wednesday evening. The next regular session is scheduled for Friday evening, but this being Christmas night the date was set forward.

The new legislators probably will meet Friday, January 8, when organization work will be undertaken. The budget for 1926 will be the first legislative wrestle during 1926.

Sessions during 1926 will be held in the municipal court headquarters on the third floor of the Thompson building, Fourth and Market streets. If council's plans do not miscarry, offices of the city auditor and city treasurer will be moved to the old council chamber on the second floor of the city building in the rooms now occupied by the auditor and treasurer.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" HERE

McManus' Cartoon Hit on Stage at Ceramic.

"Bringing Up Father in Gay New York," the last word in modern musical comedies, is the attraction at the Ceramic theater today. Based on the famous George McManus cartoons, the new offering has been acclaimed one of the best presented in many seasons. A genuine laugh-compelling vehicle, the kind that is certain to perpetuate the popularity of Jiggs, Maggie, Dinty Moore and the rest of the Mahoney clan, whose antics and escapades are daily chronicled in the leading newspapers throughout the United States. This time "Father" comes into his own, but only after he has outwitted Maggie in her mad and temporary successful authority over the worse henpecked husband and "Father" in captivity.

A "Father" show without a bevy of pretty young women forming a champion beauty chorus would not be complete. This year the pulchritude end of the contribution has been described as superior to similar offerings of previous seasons, which means that each succeeding year and this is the tenth witnesses the "best ever." As a rule these promises have been kept and if the new play lives up to advance publicity very few of the patrons of the Ceramic theater will be disappointed.

Eight boat-trains a day leave London for Paris, and a person may get a season ticket between the two capitals.
